Benson Obtains A Loud 'Ouch'

Some time ago in Washington I talked with a senator about Ezra Taft Benson, Secretary of Agriculture and a high-ranking member of the governing body of the Mormon Church — from which he is now on leave.

"I worry a little about tangle with a fellow who just takes it all to the Lord and leaves it there," the senator said, half in jest, half seriously.

Now, it appears that Secretary Benson also takes some few things to President Eisenhower... but obviously he continues to rely chiefly on the Lord. Certainly he worries not, nor frets with the Congress. He has courage, and this gives him an independence which irks much of the Congress, as well as others.

Never was the Benson forthrightness more apparent than in his talk to the Southern governors in conference at Hot Springs, Va.

He talked on their favorite subject—states' rights.

But the net result was a loud "Ouch."

Cost

Secretary Benson told them he was all for greater participation by the states in soil conservation and in the program of stabilizing the nation's agriculture.

"This," he added, "will cost the states some money... but they must know that while it is easy to get financial handouts from Washington the dollar never comes back without the bureaucratic bite taken out of it."

This brought forth the "ouch." Those who through the years have been loudest in their states' rights positions certainly don't think in terms of those "rights" as costing them any money. States' rights have for so long been used merely as a political weapon or smoke screen, that to hear them discussed in terms of responsibility to the actual needs of the people and their additional cost to the state treasuries was painful indeed.

The "ouch" hurt enough to be felt around the nation.

The states must pay for states' rights and state officials are required to interpret them in terms of responsibility to the physical needs of the people.

"Throw him out. Let's have a new Secretary of Agriculture." Nothing has been more wryly amusing, and nothing the secretary has said has been so filled with the melody of poetic justice as his straightforward speech to the Southern governors.

From any other man there would have been evidence of tongue-in-cheek. But not from this grandson of one of the men who made the long and fearful march from Missouri to Utah, where was founded the city in a desert.

Markets

Benson's problem chiefly is one of markets. The Republicans are adding controls faster even than did the Democrats.

During the fiscal year which ended June 30, U.S. agricultural exports declined 31 per cent, from $4,053,030,000 worth of commodities in 1952, to $2,815,407,000.

Greatest slump was in the basic commodities—also the basic political commodities—of cotton (52 per cent), wheat (36 per cent), and tobacco (13 per cent). There also were sharp declines in export of lard, soybean oil, grain sorghums, apples, cheese, butter, dried milk and other products.

Farm production is up and the Republicans have added to the stores already in government warehouses. THE GOVERNMENT NOW HAS ALMOST 4 BILLION DOLLARS TIED UP IN PRICE SUPPORT CROPS STORED IN WAREHOUSES. Included are more than 500 million bushels of wheat, 600 million bushels of corn, almost 250 million pounds of butter, about 500 million pounds of tobacco, and huge amounts of other commodities.

Benson has a plan for exports. It will include import allotments. Congress therefore may defeat him. But, he is ignoring Congress, which is in adjournment, and Congress can hardly wait to get back—and at him.

BANKERS COUNT $850 FOUND INSIDE CALF

Calf's Stomach Yields $850 for 'Depositor'

By KATHERINE BARNWELL

A Forsyth County farmer took $850 in dirty, chewed-up bills to the Roswell Bank in Roswell yesterday—and amazed bank officials by explaining he had killed two calves and "withdrawn" the money from one calf's stomach where it had been "deposited" temporarily.

W. Grady Dinsmore of Suwanee, Rte. 1, killed the calves with his rifle and cut them open with his pocket knife because he suspected they had "eaten" the $870 he had lost.

Dinsmore, who said he is "just a poor farmer," related: "The first calf I killed was an innocent victim. He had nothing in him but grass. But the second calf was guilty. He had $850 in his stomach."

Dinsmore said a third calf probably "ate" the missing $20—but he decided not to kill him "because he was worth more than that."

The farmer said the money probably had been in the calf's stomach about an hour before he recovered it. He explained calves have two stomachs—and the money had not been digested because it was still in the "upper" stomach.

Dinsmore said he had sold some cotton and butter beans and had been "toting" $890 in his pocket for several days. He discovered his wallet was gone "about dark" Monday and immediately began a search for it.

He found one $20 bill near the barn—and that made him suspect the calves there had "eaten" the remaining $870.

"I was sure they had got my money," he said, "and I knew I had to act quick... I sure was proud when I found it."

C. G. Webb, executive vice president of the Roswell Bank, counted the money and then turned it over to the Peachtree road office of the Fulton National Bank in Buckhead. Miss Hazel Martin, senior clerk there, counted it, too. Officials of both banks said the mutilated money ($500 in 20-dollar bills and $350 in 10-dollar bills) was still recognizable and would be replaced by the Federal Reserve Bank of Atlanta.

Director Says Camps Short On Inspectors

The State Department of Correction does not have enough inspectors to comply with recommendations of the Cobb County grand jury for tightening up inspections of public works camps.

That statement came yesterday from State Director of Corrections R. E. Warren, who added that the department does not have enough appropriations to hire additional inspectors.

Warren also declared that Fulton County is sending so many misdemeanor prisoners, especially drunks, to the state penal system, that inspectors have to spend half their time transferring prisoners to Reidsville.

The grand jury sharply criticized the administration of the Cobb public works camp last week after an investigation touched off by a trustee prisoner's criminal assault on a housewife. The grand jury also criticized the Department of Corrections for not being cognizant of true conditions at the camp.

The presentments of the grand jury called for an increase in the scope of periodic investigations of the camp by state inspectors.

But Warren said yesterday: "We can't tighten up the Cobb County inspections or any others, because we don't have enough inspectors and we don't have the money to hire any more inspectors."

Warren said the department has only three inspectors and that for

States Need Tax Sources —Talmadge

By M. L. ST. JOHN
Constitution Political Editor

HOT SPRINGS, Va., Nov. 3—The chairman of the Southern Governors Conference, Georgia's Gov. Talmadge, declared here today that the Southern states could and would finance their own functions without federal aid if Congress would release some tax sources to the states.

But Talmadge agreed with Arkansas Gov. Francis Cherry's prediction that the federal government would not repeal any of its taxes so the states can tap these sources.

Southern governors, in their round-table discussion on federal-state relationships, urged the national government to give up some of its taxes so the states can have these sources and assume responsibility for some services now being rendered by Washington.

GAS TAXES

The conference probably will pass a resolution Wednesday urging the federal government to get out of the gas tax field and let the states do all their own road building.

While some governors in the forum hit at "federal encroachment" on state duties and tax sources, Governor Cherry raised the question of whether poorer states could support themselves without federal aid even if they had all tax sources.

In an interview later, Chairman Talmadge disagreed with the view that Southern states, once called the nation's No. 1 economic problem, couldn't provide essential services if the federal government released tax sources.

FEDERAL AID

He said Georgia, which isn't high on the nation's economic ladder, gets more than $20,000,000 in federal aid for the welfare program. If the federal government would reduce its income taxes so the state could add a tax for welfare, Georgia could assume full responsibility for the welfare program, he asserted. (Georgians pay more than $700,000,000 to the Federal Government, while they pay $218,000,000 in all taxes to the state government.)

Talmadge said Georgia could build roads cheaper and more efficiently if the federal government would abolish the 2-cent gasoline tax. He said he had no doubt Georgia would vote to increase the state gas tax by this amount if the federal government got out of the field.

Jersey Votes Out GOPs in 2 Tests; Wagner Wins N.Y.

Democrats Hold Virginia In Landslide

By JOHN L. CUTTER
WASHINGTON, Nov. 4 (AP)—Democrats scored impressive victories yesterday in a series of off-year elections billed as an anniversary test of the Eisenhower administration.

They won the New Jersey governorship in an upset, took the Virginia governorship and New York mayoralty by landslides and squeezed to a narrow victory in New Jersey's traditionally Republican 6th congressional seat.

SHARP GAINS

Democratic National Chairman Stephen A. Mitchell said "impressive gains" by the Democrats show "a significant loss of confidence in the GOP" and demonstrate "a clear change of sentiment since last November." He recalled the Democrats won a congressional seat in a GOP stronghold in Wisconsin three weeks ago.

The Democrats also held the mayoralties of Cleveland and Pittsburgh. They also captured the mayor's chair in New Haven and Hartford, Conn.

VOTE ROUNDUP

Troast conceded to Meyner after midnight. With 2,717 of 3,969 election districts reporting, Meyner had piled up 696,862 votes to 547,643 for Troast. In the congressional race, with all 305 districts reporting, Williams had 68,870 votes to 66,994 for Hettfield.

Lugano Parley Rejection Implied in Soviet Reply

By WALTER H. WAGGONER
New York Times News Service, Special to The Atlanta Constitution
WASHINGTON, Nov. 3—The United States, Britain and France received from the Soviet Union today an "unresponsive and evasive" reply to the Big Three proposal for a four-power conference on Germany and Austria.

The Soviet government delivered an 18-page note to the Big Three embassies in Moscow answering their Oct. 18 invitation to attend a foreign ministers meeting on the long-delayed Big Four talks on the future of Germany and the Austrian treaty.

Officials who have seen only a summary of the Soviet note declined to describe it as a flat rejection of the Big Three proposal.

The feeling appeared to be, however, that the Soviet had no intention of accepting the invitation to a meeting that would have begun in Lugano, Switzerland, on Nov. 9.

The note was handed to Charles Bohlen, U.S. ambassador to the Soviet Union. He immediately cabled a summary of the note to Washington.

On the basis of the summary, however, officials were far from hopeful about the prospects for the proposed Lugano meeting.

One authority said the communication was "unresponsive." Another found it "evasive."

The general feeling, however, seemed to be that the Soviet reply consisted only of the suggestions of earlier Russian notes. They were:

Andrews Seriously Ill From Tear Gas Poison

By BILL DIEHL

Capt. Thomas Andrews, the East Point police captain who played a deadly cat and mouse game with 50 police officers and held an entire neighborhood at bay with gunfire Monday night, lay seriously ill in Grady Hospital yesterday. But it was tear gas—not bullets—that put him there.

The tear gas was fired into Andrews' home by fellow officers who wanted to force his surrender rather than be forced to shoot him.

Grady officials said yesterday Andrews was in "poor" condition. He lay in a coma under an oxygen tent suffering severe "tear gas poisoning."

Another ironic touch had been added Monday night by East Point City Council. Even as Andrews retreated to his home with rifle, shotgun and pistol to begin his vigil, council was meeting and discussing the possible abolishment of the position of assistant chief of police—a job Andrews was despoiled over not getting.

Churchill Drops Plea for Big 4 Talk; Says Hope for Quick Results Are Dim

LONDON, Nov. 3.—Prime Minister Churchill withdrew discreetly but definitely today his proposal for a four-power conference with Russia as a decisive step toward easing world tension.

The House of Commons and the world was cautioned by the British statesman not to expect a general settlement of issues dividing the Soviet Union and the West as the immediate result of any meeting between Allied leaders and Premier Malenkov of the Soviet Union.

CAREFUL RETREAT

Speaking with great care but with no indication of personal or political discomfort Sir Winston retreated carefully from his earlier urgings, first made in the House of Commons May 11 and repeated twice since, for a conference between Malenkov and President Eisenhower, French Premier Laniel and himself. Such a meeting, the Prime Minister declared, might have a "useful place in international relations" but there was a risk that it might end "in a still worse deadlock than there is at present."

This warning struck both Conservative and Labor members of Parliament as a sharp reversal of the position taken by Sir Winston in his speech before the Conservative party conference Oct. 10 and before the House of Commons 10 days later that such talks "could not easily do much harm."

HOPES DIM

Sir Winston's high expectations of results of such a meeting also have dimmed.

"It would be foolish to imagine there is any chance of making, straightaway, a general settlement of all the crucial problems that exist in the East as well as in the West and that exist in Germany and all the satellite countries," the Prime Minister acknowledged.

Churchill, Queen Open Parliament

LONDON, Nov. 3.—A lovely young woman wearing a crown and ermine and a heavy-jowled old man in a black sack suit and bow tie shared the limelight as leaders of the British Commonwealth today in ancient pageantry opening Parliament.

The young woman, 27 and radiant, was Queen Elizabeth II, opening Parliament for the first time as a crowned sovereign. The old man was her prime minister, 78-year-old Sir Winston Churchill, veteran of nearly 50 spirited years in the House of Commons.

Despite the half-century separating their ages, the two made a confident and pleasant pair.

The Queen took the center of the parliamentary stage when she rode in autumn sunlight in her state coach from Buckingham Palace to the House of Lords to give the traditional queen's speech from the golden throne.

Wearing the imperial state crown, and surrounded by splendidly arrayed heralds and peers and peeresses, she delivered in a steady but still-girlish voice the speech outlining the policies of her government, a speech written for her by Churchill and his fellow ministers.

To the right of the Queen in the uniform of an admiral of the fleet sat her husband, the Duke of Edinburgh.

Foreign affairs occupied the final session of Sir Winston's speech to Commons amplifying the government's program which was presented to both houses of Parliament in the Queen's speech this morning.

The legislative program that the government put before Parliament is probably the most controversial yet advanced by Tory leaders.

A proposal to lighten restrictions on rent is one of the most controversial subjects in the Tory program but Sir Winston promised this would not be treated as a party matter and said he would welcome any proposals on this subject by Labor.

The Prime Minister also announced that Commons would be presented with a plan to transfer control of atomic development from the Ministry of Supply to a statutory corporation.

Two other issues sure to come under heavy fire from Labor benches are de-ratting, which Labor claims has led to rationing by price to the detriment of the working class, and the involved problem of agricultural marketing.

BIG REASON

Sources close to the cabinet said one of the chief reasons for the Prime Minister's modification of his proposals for high level talks with the Soviet Union is that neither in personal correspondence with Eisenhower nor in conversation with Secretary of State Dulles during the foreign ministers' conference here last month did the Prime Minister receive the slightest encouragement for talks with Malenkov.

To settle great issues between the West and Russia "you are not likely to get them laid to rest, as great dangers, by personal meetings however friendly," the Prime Minister said.

Then he interjected quietly "time will undoubtedly be needed—more time than some of us here are likely to see."

FOLLOWS UP

But he followed this with a forward optimistic suggestion that in view of British strength in Europe and the position of the continent "under the massive American shield" it is not "unreasonable or dangerous" to conclude that "internal prosperity rather than external conquest is not only the deep desire of the Russian peoples but also the long interest of their rulers."

To Sir Winston in today's mood even rapid strides in the development of nuclear weapons seemed to offer some hope for humanity. There has been a lessening of tension already and "probabilities of another war have diminished or at least become more remote," he said, despite the growth of "weapons of destruction such as have never fallen before into the hands of human beings."

The very frightfulness of these weapons may yet save mankind, the Prime Minister suggested, for perhaps "when the advance of destructive weapons enables everybody to kill everybody else nobody will want to kill anybody at all."

FAIRFIELD, Ala., Nov. 3. (INS)—Two boys who headed out into the world with 15 cents between them were found afoot today after frantic parents, fearing foul play, had rallied an all-night search for them.

Jimmy Morgan and Leon Vernon, both 13, were found this afternoon at Bucksville, Ala., about 20 miles from their homes.

Jimmy's father, steel-plant worker James W. Morgan, said the boys told him today they had intended to go to Mississippi by bike. The boys had said nothing of their plans before leaving home yesterday.

SURGEONS REMOVE 4 NEEDLES

Boy Stabbed 17 Times In 3 Hours of Torture

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla., Nov. 3.—A small boy torture victim was given a 50-50 chance to live tonight after a delicate operation to remove four-inch needles piercing his heart and one lung.

The boy, 8-year-old Bruce Strandhagen, was stabbed 17 times with long needles, beaten over the head, choked and sexually mistreated last night by a sadistic torturer who held him prisoner three hours.

OPEN CHARGE

Jailed on an open charge pending the outcome of the operation was Winston H. Morse, 34, a Salem, Mass., cook who told police he had been arrested four times in Massachusetts and charged with attacks on other boys.

Police Chief Roland R. Kelley said Morse lured Bruce to his room by promising him a quarter to help with some painting. Before going, Bruce told his parents, Dr. and Mrs. Harry Strandhagen.

When the boy did not return, Mrs. Strandhagen went to Morse's rooming house at 9:45 p.m. She told police Morse answered her knock and asked what she wanted. Before she could reply, she said, she heard Bruce cry out: "Mommie, mommie, come get me! I'm hurt!"

The boy then staggered out the door and collapsed in her arms, police related. She carried him the block to their home.

CALLS POLICE

When Dr. Strandhagen saw the boy's condition he rushed to Morse's room, knocked him unconscious, then turned him over to police. At the time, he said he thought Morse had only struck his son. "I found out about the needles later," he said.

At the hospital, doctors found 17 needle wounds. Four needles had been broken off in Bruce's body. One had pierced the muscles of the heart, another a lung.

U.S. Denies Atom Plan For Spain

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3 (AP)—Defense Secretary Wilson and Secretary of State Dulles said today the United States does not plan to store atomic weapons at its new bases in Spain.

Wilson said statements of top Air Force officials about storing bombs at Spanish bases were made without being cleared by the government. Dulles said flatly: "We have no plans for storing atomic weapons in Spain" and Wilson placed himself "completely in line" with that statement.

The question arose after Air Secretary Talbott and Gen. Nathan F. Twining, Air Force chief of staff, said in Madrid Monday that atomic weapons eventually will go to U.S. forces in Spain—provided Spain agrees.

CONFERRED WITH IKE

But Wilson and Dulles categorically denied any such plan at separate news conferences held after they conferred with President Eisenhower at the White House. Vice Adm. Donald B. Duncan, vice chief of naval operations, also sat in on the White House meeting.

Wilson made these other points at his news conference:

1. The Army, Navy and Air Force budget requests for fiscal 1955 are within less than $5,000,000,000 of what the Defense Department thinks the services should have. He said debate on the funds still is going on in the Defense Department.

2. Each of the three military departments should have an assistant secretary in charge of financial affairs.

"NO JUSTIFICATION"

3. "Rumors" that defense spending may be cut to a level that will hurt business have "no justification at all."

4. There has been no directive from Washington to tighten censorship or otherwise place more stringent rules on the press in Korea. He made the statement in commenting on reports of strained relations between the press and the Army and Navy in Korea.

Talbott said "atomic weapons" eventually would go to U.S. air units operating from Spanish bases providing Spain agreed. But Twining indicated atom bombs would be given to U.S. air units in Spain only in event of attack.

Kills His Wife, Fells Bartender, Ends Own Life

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 3 (AP)—Frank Tomaso found his pretty wife drinking at a French Quarter bar today, killed her in a wild burst of shots that also critically wounded a bartender and then killed himself, police reported.

The shooting abruptly ended the cocktail hour merriment in Ciro's Lounge on Bienville St. between Dauphine and Bourbon, the center of this city's French Quarter night life.

Police said that Tomaso, alias Tony Ventura, drove up to the lounge, parked his car in the middle of the street and walked inside. A short time later the shots rang out.

Battle deaths for American troops in the Korean war averaged about 3.5 per 1,000 per year compared with 8.9 in World War II.

A Growing City Has Big Thirst

You really miss the water when the main runs dry.

The two-hour break in water service Monday was enough to make Atlantans stop and think.

Hospitals turned to melting ice and to emergency wells. Some industries were forced to shut down for the afternoon. Men on the night shift went to work without shower or shave. Firemen crossed their fingers and prayed that there be no major blaze while the pressure was down.

If a temporary interruption to the flow can do that to a city, then the thought of the dire results of a paralyzing air raid should send a flood of volunteers to the Ground Observer Corps. A vital phase of Civil Defense is the protection of the water supply.

But the implications of the Monday shut-off go further than enemy attack. A growing city has a thirst. Industry has become more and more dependent on water as manufacturing turns to chemical processes and synthetics. Water has assumed a role far different from the day when the city water works was the town pump.

Metropolitan Atlanta—the city proper and Cobb and DeKalb Counties—are dependent upon the Chattahoochee River, as Jack Spalding pointed out in his Tuesday column. The flow of the Chattahoochee is dependent in turn on climatic conditions, or rainfall and the rate of runoff. The rate of runoff depends on erosion control along the river's upper reaches.

Forestry practices in White County have a direct bearing on Atlanta's water supply. There are many facets to the problem of a city's water reserves.

Yet the basic problem is simple—storage in the soil and in reservoirs in times of plenty for use in times of famine. That's where Buford Dam fits in. We owe the fact that it is under way to the foresightedness of men like Mayor William Hartsfield who realize that a city of a million people will have an awful thirst.

Greater Atlanta cannot take water for granted. It takes a break like Monday's to teach us that.

We'd soon become a city of parched lips and fevered brows if the enemy got through to our water works or the Chattahoochee were to sing its swan song.

Respect for Property Should Be One of 'R's'

Vandalism of the type which Greater Atlanta underwent last week might be curbed effectively through a plan suggested by high school students in Milwaukee.

Through the Inter-High School Student Council, the young people recommended legislation to make parents financially responsible for damage done by minors.

Those who drafted the proposed financial responsibility law opined that if parents knew that destructive acts by their children would cost them money, they would take more interest in their offspring's whereabouts and behavior and in training them early to respect the property rights of others.

The Wisconsin teen-agers are hitting at the heart of the problem. Respect for the rights and the property of others certainly should be added to the "R's" as a basic in education.

Providing that father should pay for his failure to drive the point home would tend to make parents give more emphasis to that phase of the curriculum.

Legal Profession Has Its Obligations, Too

We have pointed out frequently that Atlanta has the highest homicide rate of any city in the nation. Regardless of the excuses we offer, we can take no pride in such statistics. Not only in Atlanta but elsewhere in Georgia, the taking of life has become quite a casual matter.

One of the reasons, of course, is leniency of our courts. When a man commits murder and is able to escape with a light sentence, the court invites others to do the same.

We were interested, therefore, in the address of Justice Robert H. Jackson of the United States Supreme Court at a meeting of lawyers in Chicago Tuesday. The justice laid it on the line in attacking the administration of criminal law as "a humiliation and discredit" to lawyers and to the nation.

The legal profession, the noted jurist said, should be ashamed of itself, not only because of administration of criminal law but because "civil justice is still delayed or denied and is often beyond the reach of deserving men, and women."

"Our nation is plagued with unprecedented juvenile delinquency, gangsterism and shocking crimes followed only by long-delayed punishment or by none," the forthright jurist declared.

He is right. We have seen it so many times right here in our own state. By use of technicalities and legal loopholes, smart attorneys have been able to delay the course of justice for years. Cases become tied up in court and, before a decision is reached, all hope of justice to fit the crime has been lost.

Professional crooks get along best in that they know how to talk to juries. These smooth operators often get by with lighter punishment, if any at all, than some first offender who is ignorant of the operation of our "temples of justice."

Mr. Justice Jackson is right. If the foundation of this country is to be based on moral force and law, it is time that we started asserting moral force and rendering law effective. The alternative is a progressive undermining of our institutions and a country that recognizes force and corruption as criteria for behavior. The legal profession has a great obligation to combat this dangerous trend.

World Will Remember The Queen of the Seas

It's impossible to believe, but it says so in black and white right here before our eyes.

The U.S. Navy will build no more battleships! And what's more, the four now in service are regarded as obsolete. They are being groomed as potential guided missile platforms, but as carriers of the Navy's heavy artillery they are already obsolescent relics of the iron age.

The Navy without battleships or battleship admirals? It sounds like heresy—something like an Infantry division without rifles or an Air Force unit without aircraft. But, like all good things, the battleship will not expire without lament.

Yes, indeed, the atomic age is upon us. But is it here to stay? In any future war can we assume that the old battleship will be just a lumbering crate in the way of the fast destroyer and guided missile carrier?

Sad is the day when the proud Missouri and her sisters will no longer prowling the seas. But this modern jet age of atomic missiles and hydrogen bombs has made many other things obsolete and has given the world a frightening new standard of values. War of the future will come in the dark, leaving death and destruction as mementos of its passing.

History will remember the battleship, however. In her day she ruled the seas and the empire builders followed in her wake. Let there be no tears, but many rousing cheers, at her demise.

Senators Should Keep This List of 'Taboos'

A prominent member of the United States Senate is fond of saying "You don't go skunk-hunting in striped trousers and a tall hat while waving a lace handkerchief." This picturesque and typically irrelevant remark may or may not satisfy his listeners, but it may also raise some questions in their minds about other things you don't—or shouldn't—do.

You don't trifle with your country's security for purposes of self-glorification. You don't ignore the Constitution, specifically the First Amendment, in order to intimidate your opponents. You don't attempt to destroy reputations with groundless insinuations to score a political point, whether the victim is a candidate for high office of the opposing party or a nominee to high office of your own party. You don't prove yourself willing and eager to undermine the foundations of your government's foreign policy by the most unrestrained and violent attack on our strongest and oldest allies. You don't attempt to wreck your country's propaganda program by holding a public carnival, especially when you know that needed reforms are being carefully and meticulously studied without fanfare by some of your most able colleagues. You don't aid the Communists to erode your country's well-deserved reputation as the stronghold of liberal democracy by doing everything in your power to make it appear to be a citadel of anti-liberalism, anti-intellectualism and reaction.

You don't publicize classified military documents in order to make a headline. You don't ignore your responsibilities as a public official by promoting mistrust, suspicion and disunity among your fellow-citizens. You don't forget that our beloved country will remain the hope of the free world, which is the only kind of world worth living in, as long as its people remain true to the liberal, democratic principles on which this Republic was founded.

Dr. Guy H. Wells Passes the Word

Dr. Guy Wells is a man of pioneer spirit. After 19 years as president of Georgia State College for Women at Milledgeville, and before that an eight-year stretch as head of the Teachers' College at Statesboro, he is in the midst of a new and invigorating career.

The doctor devoted 37 years of his life to Georgia college students, particularly those who wanted to join the ranks of the teaching profession. At an age when most college presidents are thinking of a quiet retirement, enlivened mainly by the visits and Christmas cards of former pupils, Dr. Wells took off for the land of the infidel.

Through the Point Four program of the State Department he went to North Africa to supervise the educational program of the aged, but newly revived Kingdom of Libya. He is stationed in Cyrenaica province where he directs two colleges, all the library work, and the teachers of English in the area.

Milledgeville, his home for so many years, is considered quite an historic place by Georgians. It is the old capital, and just celebrated its sesquicentennial.

Dr. Wells now lives near the ruins of Cyrene, a town founded by the Greeks at the suggestion of the Delphic Oracle. This is remarkably like founding a city at the order of the legislature. Ancient Cyrene, like old Milledgeville, recommended itself to the first settlers by the fine springs nearby.

Guy Wells writes more about the Berbers and the Arabs who inhabit his new home. He is impressed by the Arab culture and the fact that they had rural health clinics two centuries before we did. Through the Crusaders, who found only temporary hospitality on the Arab world, the West learned about the compass, gunpowder and sugar, not to mention new streams of religious and philosophical thought; astronomy, chemistry, mathematics and the very numbers we use when we count.

Dr. Wells' new field has been Greek and Roman. It has been ruled by the Ptolemies of Egypt and the Turks. It has been an independent kingdom and a colony of the new Romans; the Italians of the House of Savoy and Mussolini. After World War II Libya was re-established as a kingdom under Idris I, who also took unto himself the title of Amir of Cyrenaica. The capital is Benghazi, a city of 62,000, and a place that seemed to change hands every other week during the African phase of World War II.

Guy Wells is a citizen of the new world and has an important part in its scheme of education. Now he's in the old, instructing youth in the things their ancestors knew but their parents had forgotten. Knowledge that has been preserved in Baldwin County, Georgia, is being returned to its source, and the doctor seems to be having a wonderful time supervising the transfusion.

Democrats Court Farmers, Labor

WASHINGTON—In 1948 a coalition of labor and Midwestern farmers, each group operating independently for the most part and for its own reasons, was a big factor in turning the election tide to the Democrats and Harry Truman and thus upsetting an all but conceded Republican victory.

In last year's presidential election that coalition came unstuck. A majority of Midwestern farmers swooped over to the Republican Party and to General Eisenhower who also, in fact, was the beneficiary of defections from the Democrats in the ranks of labor. The latter, however, still remained a hard core of Democratic support and Democrats count upon that in their comeback plans.

They will need the farmers, too, or at least a substantial percentage, and chief missionary work now is directed toward that sector. We see that in the way Democrats are capitalizing the price-fall dilemma that confronts the Republican administration which, but for the grace of Dwight D. Eisenhower's great attraction last November, would have been a Democratic hair shirt now.

Less noticed is the way the labor allies of the Democratic Party also were exploiting the Republican dilemma and courting the farmers.

This theme was stressed recently by Walter Reuther, CIO president, who took pen in hand and somewhat pontifically expressed concern for the poor farmer whom he depicted as the victim of the Republican administration.

With obvious political slant, he expressed the main and valid argument thus: "Already, the 13 per cent drop in farm prices since the last election has forced farmers drastically to curtail purchase of farm implements made by city workers. In some states, employment of CIO members in farm equipment plants has been cut in half. In Iowa alone, layoffs and short work weeks have cost workers more than a million dollars a week."

"As city workers' incomes fall, they must—due to inadequate savings and unemployment compensation—reduce their purchase of farm products. Farm 'surpluses'—often the result of inadequate purchasing power rather than a reduced need for food—develop. These unsold farm products tend to depress farm prices further and an economic cycle is started that, unless checked, only leads to general economic collapse."

Mr. Reuther suggested a common legislative program to increase farm and labor purchasing power—price supports to give "full parity return" to farmers and cattle-men and for the worker an increase in the statutory minimum wage which now is 75 cents an hour.

A farmer-labor political alliance never has been effected in actual terms on a national scale, though often tried.

Solution to Israel-Arab Difficulties Termed Possible Through Negotiation

New York—Israel should not be immune to criticism, and criticism was justified in the recent border incident at Kibya. Yet similar criticism should also be directed at the various Arab states for their continued border warfare; at Egypt for continuing to block the Suez Canal to Israel-bound shipping; at all the Arab states for pressing their economic boycott against Israel, for impeding progress toward resettlement of Arab refugees in Arab lands.

We welcome the UN inquiry into this matter, but regret it did not come earlier. We do deplore our government's prejudging of the issues, the intemperance of its language and the use of economic coercion against Israel. We are firmly convinced the only real, lasting solution to the various problems pointed up in the present conflict is the negotiation of peace between Israel and the Arab states.

It appears to us the most effective action our government could take is to urge both groups to join minds and hearts around the conference table, and face squarely and cooperatively the immediate and long-range problems of the region which an era of peace can solve creatively for both.

Says Houston Minute Women Are Not a Pressure Group

Atlanta—Perhaps Houston is remarkably free of Communist influences because of the Minute Women. I went to hear Suzanne Silvercruys Stevenson when she talked in Atlanta a few years ago. She is the sister of Baron Silvercruys, Belgian Ambassador to Washington.

Mrs. Stevenson was the inspiration of the Minute Women, which is not an organization at all but "souls dedicated to the preservation of the United States as a free, independent Republic." They are not a pressure group but are free as individuals to think and act for the protection of the land we love.

As Weak as It Is, the Man Said, The U.N. Is Still World's Best Hope

The talk was of the United Nations, and there were those who were against it because it was weak, and its members were contentious, and there were those who were against it because, they said, it sought to destroy this nation's sovereignty, and there were those who were against it merely because the people who made up its councils spoke and thought and acted differently from us.

Then the man with the moustache began to speak, very quietly. Consider, he said, the smallest political unit, the village, or the town. In any village or town, he said, there were many people who thought, and acted, differently from their neighbors in small ways. There were rich men and poor men, and human nature being what it is, the poor man would like to own what the rich man have, and human avarice being what it is, there are some rich men who would like to take everything for themselves and leave the poor man nothing.

Then why, he asked, in the little community, does not each man take by force and violence what the other man has. Because, he says, there is a man with a badge who represents law, and there are courts to uphold the law and a government to uphold the courts. And thus each man, in the smallest community, is protected in his person and his property.

as the A. G. Rhodes Memorial Home for many years. It is like a big family home, efficiently staffed and operated for the comfort and enjoyment of the finest group of people I have ever seen, one filled with hope and happiness which stems from an efficient board of directors, a wonderful superintendent and nurses.

Bashful and 'Sneaky' Dunkers Are Targets for Association

New York—A survey in a group of cities revealed that despite the 15 years of campaigning to encourage dunking and despite the fact that the great authority on etiquette, Emily Post, okayed the art some years ago, there still prevails a certain number of people who are bashful about dunking. These folks are grabbing the new junior miniature donuts because they are small enough to be palmed in one's hand. Yes, these timid souls are hiding their dunks under their palm—afraid to come out in the open.

Needless to add, while the National Dunking Association has no objection to grownups eating and, of course, dunking, the junior donuts, we are disturbed with the sneaky underhand—or rather underpalm—manner in which they are being dunked. And so we wish to announce a concerted campaign to rid the country of bashful dunkers. Let's all dunk—but let's do it openly and unafraid. BERT NEVINS, Vice President, National Dunking Association.

Washington, Not a General, Still Didn't 'Fade Away'

St. Louis—Senator X recently asked the Army why George Washington hasn't been promoted to general before now, and the Army has decided only Congress can do this. I doubt if any Americans have held back their love for Washington just because he died a lieutenant general.

A retroactive promotion now might be bad for the morale of present and future lieutenant generals. The ambitious ones might feel they were worth more dead than alive. It may be the Army had more rigid commission requirements in Washington's day, and holding three stars then may have been equivalent to five stars today. The dollar value may figure about the same.

Crusading Starts Within the Self

Ever so often I hear people tell how the world is getting worse and how it will be destroyed by its own wickedness. But the Christ who taught us to pray: "Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done in earth" (Matthew 6:10), said it would be like the mustard seed which grows into a great tree.

He believed that love is stronger than hate, that truth is stronger than a liar, that goodness is stronger than evil, that righteousness is stronger than sin, that God is stronger than Satan. Dictators and rulers will die, even civilizations will crumble, but God's kingdom will continue to grow. It has been so for the last 2,000 years, it will be so for the next 2,000-10,000-100,000 years. I believe, "The earth shall be filled with His knowledge and glory, as waters that cover the sea." When I line up on the side of God and His Church, I believe I am on the winning side.

How did Christ expect the kingdom of God to grow? Through church organization? Partly so. Remember, when someone says he doesn't need to belong to and be active in the church, it was Christ who said, "I will build my church" (Matthew 16:18). To say the church is unnecessary is to contradict Him. But I sometimes think we emphasize church organization entirely too much. There is danger of polishing the bucket so much that we forget to use it to carry water to thirsty men.

Did Christ expect God's kingdom to come through social reform? Of course, wherever the name of Christ is established, society is reformed but we must keep causes and results in their proper order. I sometimes lose my patience with these people who are constantly crusading for some social reform. I know that is important but I also know we cannot create a redeemed society until we, ourselves, become redeemed men and women.

Jesus was not a social reformer. Though he lived under a government of Godless totalitarianism, he never attacked it. He did not preach about prison conditions, freeing slaves, or about international relations. Instead of sociology, he talked about man's relationship with God. He knew that when a man gets right inside, then he will live right.

But it is easier to crusade than it is to repent. It is easier to write letters to Congress than it is to pray. It is easier to clean up slums than it is to clean up one's own heart. It is easier to talk about the redemption of society than the saving of one's own soul.

Listen to these words from the first chapter of Mark: "Jesus came into Galilee, preaching the gospel of the kingdom of God, and saying, the time is fulfilled, and the kingdom of God is at hand—let's get busy and pass some laws." No. "Let's start some social crusades." No. He said, "Repent ye." God's kingdom comes through individual lives.

Lord Sent 'Angel' In Patrol Car

An emissary of the Lord is about the last thing a Georgia state trooper would expect to be called. But it has happened in south Georgia. A minister whom I know was in the region on a church mission.

Home bound, he was pushing down with his accelerator foot when he should have been lifting. A Georgia highway patrolman waved him to the road shoulder and courteously advised that he was slightly over the limit and should take it easy. When the minister reached home, his wife greeted him with, "Honey, I'm so relieved to see you. I worried about you on that long trip and I prayed that the Lord would follow you and keep you safe."

"He followed me all right," the husband said. "But I didn't recognize Him in that uniform."

"THOSE WHO DESIRE may send contributions to the American Cancer Society," the funeral notice said. But I would lay a verbal wreath at the bier of a great guy, Conrad (Red) Walden, Southern Bell official who last weekend lost the decision in a battle with cancer.

Before he came to Atlanta five years ago, he was the phone company's Anderson, S. C., manager. His civic interests extended far beyond his firm. Folks in Anderson give "Red" much credit for their municipal gymnasium and for other community achievements. In Georgia, he was a power behind the rural lines extension program. He was most at home at a country barbecue that marked a project's completion.

If ever a man was born to promotion and public relations, it was Conrad Walden. That is because he loved people. Because he loved people, he made a host of friends. Now that cancer has cut him down at 52, those many friends have rolled up their sleeves to intensify the fight on the mysterious killer.

Extradition Move Begun In Insurance Libel Case

A move to extradite a Chicago insurance official and a Louisville, Ky., publisher accused of libel got under way in Atlanta yesterday.

34th Traffic Victim Here A Pedestrian

The city's 34th traffic fatality was recorded yesterday when a 50-year-old pedestrian died at Grady Hospital of injuries received Friday when struck by an automobile on Chattahoochee Ave., NW, police said.

Pt. J. R. Hardman and Jack Langley, who investigated, said the victim, Robert S. Russell of 1714 Spring St., NW, was knocked 50 feet by the impact when he was hit by a car about 7:35 p.m. Friday.

Russell, at the time he was injured, was booked for drunkenness and violating pedestrian rights and duties after witnesses told officers he appeared intoxicated shortly before the mishap. Driver of the auto which hit Russell, listed as Corlie R. Byrd of 2219 Bolton Rd., NW, Apt. 1, was booked for speeding and accident, in addition to a charge of involuntary manslaughter.

Russell's death was the first for November. Fifty-four fatalities had been recorded this time last year.

Sol. Gen. Roger H. Lawson of the Oconee Judicial Circuit petitioned Gov. Talmadge to ask that John McArthur and James E. Dunne be brought to Georgia to answer the charges.

McArthur is president of the Bankers Life and Casualty Insurance Co. of Chicago. Dunne is publisher of the Insurance Index.

A Telfair County Grand Jury indicted the two men on charges of libeling Gov. Talmadge, Zack D. Cravey, state insurance commissioner, and Fulton Superior Judge George P. Whitman Sr., in the Sept. 30, 1951, edition of the Insurance Index.

Gov. Talmadge's legal assistant, John Houston, said he is preparing the extradition papers and expects to have them ready for the chief executive when he returns from the governors' conference in Hot Springs, Va.

The indictments alleged that the articles in The Insurance Index exposed the Georgia officials to "public hatred, ridicule and contempt."

McArthur and Dunne also were indicted on similar charges in Pulaski County, Hawkinsville.

J. A. Ross, a former employee of the Chicago company, was one of the persons who brought the suit in Telfair County. Ross was convicted in Atlanta last year of attempting to bribe a clerk in Cravey's office to slip him certain documents concerning the Chicago firm.

Talmadge Won't Press School Issue

Special to The Constitution
HOT SPRINGS, Va., Nov. 3—Gov. Talmadge said today he will not ask the Southern Governors' Conference to adopt any resolutions in regard to school segregation suits now pending in the U.S. Supreme Court.

Talmadge, chairman of the conference, told the governors Monday that a Supreme Court decision banning segregation would be "nothing less than a major step toward national suicide," but he said today he would not ask resolutions supporting his stand.

While a few governors have privately endorsed Talmadge's speech, there has been no general conversation on the segregation issue here.

Gov. James Byrnes of South Carolina—whose state is directly involved in the pending suits—declined to discuss the suits, saying that as a former member of the Supreme Court it would be inappropriate for him to discuss pending suits.

Other governors agreed with Talmadge's report that state programs to provide equal public school facilities are being administered "for the benefit of all people, white and colored."

As the conference nears an end here, there is talk that Gov. Johnston Murray of Oklahoma will succeed Talmadge as chairman.

FINGER PAINTS, COUNSELING HELP SOLVE PROBLEMS
Family Service Society Worker Uses Both

Finger Paints Aid Child of Broken Home

A box of finger paints helped a little girl with a big problem here. Alice, confused tiny victim of a broken Atlanta home, fought off sleep every night because she dreaded the nightmares that made her wake up shrieking with fright. An aunt advised "a good whipping." Well-meaning neighbors alternated between teasing and spoiling the pretty little girl. At last Alice's frantic mother sought help at the Family Service Society. That's where the paints—and intelligent counseling—came in. A Family Service Society counselor, with psychiatric training and an understanding of the frightened little girl's needs, set Alice to "playing" with finger paints. The counselor helped and talked with the child during the "play" sessions. The youngster in this way was able to express and lose her fears and tensions. Alice's mother received valuable counsel, too—something the most well-meaning relatives could not give her.

The Family Service Society, Red Feather agency which your Community Chest contributions helps support, gives Fulton and DeKalb County families and individuals help ranging from such counseling to job placement and temporary financial aid.

'Tap Dance Concerto' Coming Here

By ALEX JOINER
Atlanta will get a look at a new kind of dance during the Nov. 12-14 stand of the six-year-old Southern Ballet in the Woman's Club Auditorium.
Highlighting the three evening performances, they start at 8:30 p.m., will be the group's interpretation of "Tap Dance Concerto."
A kind of blending of Gershwin and Beethoven, according to Pittman Corey who did the choreography, the dance is written in the classical concerto form. Morton Gould was the composer and, in certain portions, the dancing ensemble takes the place of the orchestra, making its own music.
Other music for the three evening performances, and three matinees to be danced by the school's junior group, will be provided by Albert Coleman and the Pops Concert Orchestra.
The senior dance group will do the three-act "Coppelia" in its entirety to round out the evening shows. The junior group repertoire will include "Peter and the Wolf," "Punch and Judy," and "The Lost Princess."

Pittman, Sylvia Sayre and Joan Limehouse take the solo parts in the "Concerto."

The climate and the average rainfall of the South make it one of the nation's best pasture and grassland farming areas.

Cobb Reaches Feverish Pitch for Commissioner's Vote Thursday

Special to The Constitution
MARIETTA, Nov. 3.—Political activity began reaching a feverish pitch today, just two days before a special election Thursday to name a successor to the late John A. Heck as Cobb County commissioner.

There are four candidates in the race—Mrs. Heck, the late commissioner's widow; Rhodie J. Ward, farmer and retired attorney; J. M. (Hoot) Gibson, former mayor of Smyrna, and Fred Walker, Mableton farmer.

Although Gibson is claiming to be the strongest candidate, most political observers here see the race as a close contest between Ward and Mrs. Heck, with Gibson running third.

LANDSLIDE UNLIKELY

That is the way leaders in both the Heck and Ward camps analyze the battle. Both sides predicting victory but neither side looks for a landslide. The Heck leaders view Ward as their chief adversary and vice versa.

With nearly 30,000 voters registered in the county, most observers predict a turnout Thursday of between 10,000 and 15,000 at the polls to determine which candidate will fill the unexpired term of the late Commissioner Heck. Mr. Heck, who died only three weeks ago, had been re-elected last year to a new four-year term.

Thus the prize of the election is a $9,000-a-year job for three years, with all the influence and responsibilities that go with the important position which is somewhat like that of a county manager.

In a vigorous campaign of newspaper, television and radio advertisements, the supporters of Mrs. Heck are urging her election to complete a progressive program initiated during Mr. Heck's administration.

WATER EXPANSION

This program includes expansion of the county's water system and the $3,500,000 Cobb County-Marietta Water Authority development; a $1,000,000 road-building program; creation of sewerage districts and fire prevention districts in the county, and completion of the Lake Acworth Park Authority development.

While the Heck campaign slogan is "Complete the Program," the Ward backers are campaigning under the slogan of "Speed Up the Program" and pledging to do it better.

The Ward supporters are not centering their fire against Mrs. Heck personally, nor against her late husband's record. But they charge that a "political machine" has come into being in Cobb County during the last few years and that the "machine" is merely using Mrs. Heck as an instrument to consolidate its power.

Raymond Reed, former legislator serving as campaign manager for Ward, charges that the "machine" is dominated by Rep. Harold Willingham, Davis Taylor, warden of the county public works camp, and Cecil Bullard, farmer.

DRAFTED FOR CAMPAIGN

In order to break this "machine," which Reed claims has reached its tentacles into all parts of the county, Reed says Ward was drafted to run for the commissioner's post.

Reed describes Ward as an honest, capable man with a background of legal experience, farming, civic work and recent county work in bringing land records up to date.

"We want to place a competent man in office," Reed says. One of Ward's objectives, his campaign manager said, would be to "clean up the convict camp and another to see to it that the county police are used for law enforcement instead of as a political arm."

The Cobb County legislative delegation is split in this race. Rep. Fred Bentley is backing Ward, while Reps. Ben Smith and Harold Willingham are supporting Mrs. Heck.

Smith denies that any political machine exists in the county, and some of the Heck advertisements are asking "What machine?"

As one of Mrs. Heck's campaign managers, Smith points to her 25 years of experience in business and county government and her knowledge of and work with her late husband's administrative program.

SPEAKS ON TV

In her first campaign speech over television last night, Mrs. Heck said she resented charges that she would be "a mere figurehead" if elected, and declared that "the people know I have always made my own decisions."

She said it was her husband's wish that she carry out and complete the program he started. With her experience and knowledge of the program, she could carry it through to completion without interruption, Mrs. Heck declared. She added that she would not seek re-election at the completion of the term.

Although the Heck supporters point to past grand jury presentations praising John Heck's administration, a special grand jury presentation last week was hailed by Ward supporters as a boost to their cause. This presentation sharply criticized administration of the county public works camp and recommended reforms. It also recommended dismissal of Henry L. Hawthorne as an employee of the camp. Hawthorne is a brother-in-law of Mrs. Heck.

Ward's candidacy also got a boost several days earlier when Fred Legg, an oil distributor, withdrew his candidacy in favor of Ward. Legg also had been campaigning against "the machine."

Meanwhile, Gibson's friends are booming him as the strongest candidate in the race and pointing to his experience and progressive record as mayor of Smyrna, his ability to complete the county's improvement program and his experience in helping get new industry for Cobb County.

Gen. Church Dies; Took Dean's Unit

Had Served At Ft. Benning

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3 (AP)—Gen. John H. Church, who took charge of the 24th Infantry Division when its commander, Maj. Gen. William F. Dean, was captured in Korea, died tonight at Walter Reed Army Medical Center. He was 51.

Church, retired, had been ill for several months.

Born in Glen Iron, Pa., Church attended Bucknell Academy and New York University. He was twice wounded while serving in France during World War I.

During World War II, Church served with the 45th and 94th Infantry Divisions in Africa and Europe. Afterward he commanded the Infantry Replacement Centers at Ft. McClellan, Ala., and Ft. Jackson, S.C. After serving in Korea, he commanded the Infantry School at Ft. Benning, Ga., his last command.

Church's decorations included the Distinguished Service Cross and the Legion of Merit.

Split of City, Fulton Tax Office Likely agreed to take three steps to help Fulton County's schools out of a financial crisis:

1. Approve a constitutional amendment to eliminate the homestead exemption for school purposes on property outside the City of Atlanta.
2. Approve a constitutional amendment increasing the county's bonded debt limit from 7 per property valuation.
3. Pass a bill requiring Fulton County to transfer from the general funds, other than taxes, $130,000 to the county school system. This is in addition to $140,000 transferred to the school funds last February.

SCHOOL FUND

Millikan said this would give the schools a total of $270,000 from county funds to help them operate through the 1953-54 school year.

The senator said elimination of the homestead exemption on property subject to school taxes outside Atlanta would place that property on the same basis as property in the city. Atlanta property owners, he said, do not get the exemption on property subject to school taxes.

"As the delegation sees it," Millikan said, "unless the people in the county school system area vote for removing the homestead exemption from school taxes, the Fulton County schools will not be able to operate in 1954-55 to the extent they are now operating."

The delegation reached agreement on a bill to amend the City of Atlanta pension laws so as to make an employee or his beneficiary eligible for benefits on a percentage basis after 10 years of employment instead of 15. This will be made retroactive to January 1952 and will make the city's pension law conform to the county's.

FIND ACCORD

Agreement also was reached on a bill, advocated by city firemen and policemen, to exclude them from the workmen's compensation law. The policemen and firemen reportedly can get more lenient health and accident benefits from the city than through the workmen's compensation statute.

The delegation also agreed on a bill giving the city the right to fix the amount of costs for laying sewers, but decided against creating a fact-finding committee to study over all water supply needs for the city and county unless the city government requests it.

Agreement was reached by the delegation not to annex any additional territory to the City of Atlanta at this month's session of the Legislature.

Millikan also said that the delegation does not plan to pass any local bills during the short 25-day session that can be postponed until 1955.

Yugoslavs Assail Italy Export Ban

BELGRADE, Nov. 3 (INS)—Yugoslavia handed Italy a note today protesting the ban on exports to Yugoslavia.

The Yugoslav news agency Tanjug said that the ban was interpreted as an extraordinary measure with a view to increasing economic and political pressure against Marshal Tito's Yugoslavia in keeping with Italy's present anti-Yugoslav policy in the dispute over Trieste territory.

the past several months they have had to spend much of their time as transfer officers, transporting prisoners from Fulton County to Tattall State Prison at Reidsville.

The director blamed a jurisdictional dispute between the City of Atlanta and Fulton County over drunk-driving cases for the increase in misdemeanor prisoners sent to the state penal system.

He charged that since Fulton Criminal Court challenged the city court's right to try drunk-driving cases, the city has unloaded its "plain drunk" cases onto the county court.

As a result, Warren said, the state every month has to transport to Reidsville between 68 and 100 persons convicted of drunkenness, a misdemeanor.

Whereas the prison population at Reidsville averaged only 1,352 last year, a count last week showed 1,713, Warren said.

J. B. Hatchett, assistant director of corrections, said "100 per cent of this increase can be attributed to Fulton County unloading its common drunks on us."

Robert Carter, chief clerk of the Department of Corrections, said that out of the 5,365 misdemeanor cases handled by the department during the fiscal year which ended June 30, a total of 1,484 came from Fulton County and 783 of the misdemeanor cases involved short-term convictions for drunkenness.

Warren said this situation will cost the department an additional expense of between $175,000 and $200,000 a year.

Hatchett termed it "ridiculous" for persons convicted of drunkenness to be sent to the state penal system.

Pointing out that Georgia and Alabama are the only two states that take misdemeanor prisoners into their state penal systems, Warren said:

Cobb Warden Is Sued In Attack Case

A Cobb County woman, rape victim of a convict, yesterday filed a $50,000 damage suit against Davis Taylor, warden of the public works camp.

Court Clerk John T. Leacy said the suit, filed in Cobb County Court, charges Taylor with negligence of duty in allowing Amos Reese, a Negro serving 18 to 20 years for sex offenses, to "roam at large . . . without any supervision."

A Cobb County jury Friday found Reese guilty of raping the woman in her home on Oct. 20.

The woman's suit claims she suffered mental and physical pain and that the case has caused her "great humiliation and embarrassment."

The suit charges Taylor with "wanton, willful neglect of duty."

Andrews Near Death From Tear Gas Poison

clered unconstitutional and the city has reverted to its 1912 charter under which the abolishment would be legal.

Monday night, City Councilman Henry Blair, chairman of East Point's Police committee, introduced a strong recommendation that the job be eliminated in favor of a three-captain system. The recommendation was taken under immediate advisement by council and it then adjourned.

Most of the councilmen then drove the several blocks to Newnan Ave., where the veteran of 18 years of service on the force was holed up in his home, answering tear gas guns with rifle and pistol fire.

CRACK SHOT Andrews, long considered one of the crack shots of the East Point force and a deadly marksman with either hand, held policemen off for seven hours. It was almost an hour after an armored express car was halted roadside to the house and officers inside fired four tear gas bombs into the structure that Fulton Deputy Sheriff D. V. Cotton entered and found Andrews unconscious in the kitchen.

During the siege, police and residents of the neighborhood hid behind trees and inched forward on hand and knees to vantage spots in attempts to capture the officer and see what was going on.

Until the last, Andrews was staunch in his resistance. Only a few minutes before officers invaded the home he hurled curses at them, defying them to "come and get me."

But despite the sensational shoot-and-hide game Monday, other police officers were completely agreed on one thing: Tom Andrews, they said, was a fine officer. His service record proved that.

The Pros and the Cons

When Bill Alexander was alive, scouts for professional athletic talent set foot on the Georgia Tech acreage only with a bodyguard or by personal invitation. It wasn't that the militant old fellow disliked scouts, and it wasn't that he disliked professional athletics. He simply didn't approve of professionalism for the athletes he trained.

When Bill Paschal went to the pros before giving college half a fling, Alexander let out a roar that could be heard from here to Dahlgren. Frank Ziegler says he'll never forget the snort that came out when he told Alex he'd signed with the Philadelphia Eagles.

Actually, baseball raids on the Tech campus set Alex so hard against the pros, one case in particular when a scout signed away a couple of likely two-letter prospects named Campbell and Tierce. This caused the secretion of enough gall to cover the entire professional field and Alex never let up.

Baseball has never made any concerted attempt to make its peace with the colleges. Major and minor league teams bore in relentlessly and stole away with some of the classiest talent about. Georgia lost Don Lassetter, already chosen Zeke Bratkowski's successor, to the Cardinals and Jimmy Niswonger to Pittsburgh. The Pirates figured in the celebrated case of Tommy O'Brien at Tennessee some years ago. Texas lost a great back, Ben Tompkins, to Phillies. And Florida coughed up Haywood Sullivan for the Red Sox.

Professional football, on the other hand, has always respected the collegiate brethren. Perhaps it's because the colleges provide the pros with their own expenseless "farm system," but the colleges like to believe it's because there is a stronger bond between their football people and the pros.

Saturation in the Living Room

That respect of the pros for the collegians ends at the television set. Maybe we've been living with a sack over our heads where pro football was concerned. It would never be a competitor of the college game, we always said. The pros have their kind of appeal and the collegians have their kind of appeal.

Trouble is, the pros' appeal seems to be making gains and it's surely not being restrained by television. It is possible on a typical Georgia weekend to see three professional football games and never leave your living room. It would require two TV sets on a Sunday afternoon, for not one but two games are being piped into Atlanta between the church hour and sundown.

Question is, what's it doing to the college game?

Right at the moment, nothing more than stealing audiences that might otherwise be watching films of the game the old school played the day before. This thing started with the Washington Redskins a couple of years ago. It's growing now to the point that pro football must be covered almost as completely in Monday editions as the baseball major leagues in the summer.

It means that the pros are teaching the parlor fan their kind of game. It's contagious. The watcher likes it. He may figure it's such a treat he'll stay home from the stadium on Saturday to prune the trees and give the privet hedge a haircut and take his football on Sunday, shoes off, easy chair flung athwart the room, refreshments on the side.

Very Bigtime and Very Smalltime

"The way I see it," says Bobby Dodd, who has never had any beef with the pros, "is that the colleges will come around to the pros' kind of game in a couple of years. We're using so many of the pros' ideas now, like the umbrella defense, place-kick specialists, lots of passes, everything to loosen up the game and make it more interesting to the public.

"The one step we've taken in the other direction is the switch back to limited substitution, and I'm sure that will be relaxed eventually. That was done mainly in the interest of cutting expenses. Very few people actually realize just how much it costs to put a college football team on the field."

With costs booming, affection for the pros growing and reaching long TV arms into the hinterlands, there will come another wave of resigning football schools. The public won't be willing much longer to foot the bill of the long drive and tickets and the stadium with football, college and pro, saturating the channels. It's becoming more attractive by the day to stay at home.

In the end, I can see only two classes of college football left, the Very Bigtime and the Very Smalltime. No in-between. Notre Dame, UCLA, Northwestern and the big schools will live. Sewanee, Johns Hopkins, Swarthmore and those who have found a delightful satisfaction in low-cost football for football's sake will rock along oblivious to all the tremors of readjustment in the upper levels. They're going to be right surprised when they finally hear all the trouble other people have been having with the game.

TRIED IN '39

Sacrifice Fly Ruling Goes Back in Book

NEW YORK, Nov. 3 (AP)—The sacrifice fly returned to baseball today after an absence of more than a dozen years as the national playing rules committee decided to give credit to a batsman who hits a long ball to bring in a run.

The restoration of the sacrifice fly, restored once for a one-year period in 1939 and then dropped again, was the principal action taken at a two-day meeting of the playing rules committee, representing the major and minor leagues.

Other actions authorized the use of laminated wood bats for the 1954 season, required players to take their gloves and other equipment off the playing field between innings, rejected a suggestion to bring back the spitball and made various other changes to clarify the rules and to take care of special situations.

It was the first meeting of the committee in more than two years and most of the discussion was concerned with correcting previous errors and oversights and to covering new situations that had arisen since 1951.

Among the latter were the practice of taking a flying start to "tag up" after a fly ball is caught and the "unsportsmanlike" custom of standing in a batter's line of vision in order to distract his attention.

Munday, Nelson Handle TV Work At Jacksonville

A couple of thoroughbred Southerners, Lindsay Nelson and Bill Munday, have been picked by NBC to handle the television commentary on the Georgia-Florida football renewal in Jacksonville Saturday.

Nelson, now assistant sports director of NBC, is a native of Knoxville, Tenn. Munday, of course, has been identified with radio almost since the birth of the industry, and is now in the whirl of a great comeback as a national "ports voice."

The network was granted the right to do the full game on a regional basis after the collapse of the NCAA's panoramic program. The game will be seen in Atlanta over WSB-TV.

Tech May Up Seats 15,000

Enlargement Seen Soon

By EDWIN POPE

There is an excellent possibility that Georgia Tech will add 10,000 to 15,000 seats to Grant Field in the near future.

Bobby Dodd, Tech athletic director and head football coach, says the project is under discussion although no definite action has been taken.

The horseshoe-shaped stadium now accommodates 40,000 spectators. Enlargement to a capacity of 50,000 to 55,000 would be accomplished by the unusual method of digging out the present playing field and surrounding cinder-track, and adding seats below the present seating structure.

All seats would be between the 10-yard lines.

"I think it safe to say," Dodd said yesterday, "that the athletic board and officials at Tech have ruled out any double-decking proposition as both too expensive and impractical. We know that other schools—notably Notre Dame—have been successful with the excavation-type job and we hope we will be able to do it."

Dodd said it was not certain when the project would get underway. "The best guess is that it will be done in the near future."

It was the second straight happy disclosure in as many days for football fans hard pressed for tickets. On Monday, Tech revealed that application has been made to the NCAA for permission for local television of the Tech-Georgia game on Nov. 28.

Enlargement would place Grant Field among the Southeastern Conference's most capacious arenas. Tulane has the biggest, using 81,000-seat Sugar Bowl Stadium. Louisiana State's Tiger Stadium now seats 45,000 but construction is under way to make room for 65,000.

Other stadium capacities:

Tennessee, Shields-Watkins Field, 55,000; Georgia, Sanford Field, 46,000; Florida, Florida Field, 39,000; Kentucky, Stoll Field, 36,000; Mississippi State, Scott Field, 35,000; Ole Miss, Hemingway Stadium, 34,500; Alabama, Denny Stadium, 32,000; Vanderbilt, Dudley Field, 28,000; Auburn, Cliff Hare Stadium, 22,500.

NCAA Prexy: Clean Up Football or Cancel It

Alabama's A. B. Moore Hints More Schools To Get Penalties

TALLADEGA, Ala., Nov. 3 (AP)—College football should be abolished "root and branch" unless it is cleansed of hypocrisy, skull-duggery and cheating," the head of the National Collegiate Athletic Association believes.

Dr. A. B. Moore, president of the NCAA and also faculty chairman of athletics at the University of Alabama, said his organization "has only scratched the surface" in uncovering unethical practices in college football.

The NCAA head said he was advocating "operating on the patient and not killing him."

Moore made the charges in a speech before the Talladega Quarterback Club last night.

The NCAA head said blame for current evils is shared by alumni, parents of athletes, coaches and college officials.

Parents, he said, tell their sons to "go to the school that'll pay you the most."

The NCAA, he continued, is hampered in its investigations because "everybody shuts up" when questions are asked. "The alumni," Moore added, would rather go on cheating than expose others who are cheating. You may read that the NCAA has caught 10 or 12 schools. But not nearly enough is being done."

Moore said the Southeastern Conference's grant-in-aid program for athletes is not working because alumni insist on "under-the-table" assistance to players.

Here's comment from about the country on Moore's talk:

Atlantic Coast Conference president James T. Penney, South Carolina: "People shouldn't make charges of hypocrisy, skull-duggery and cheating in college football unless they can come forth with the information to prove them. If they can't they should keep their mouths shut."

Coach Bowden Wyatt, Arkansas: "When they abolish college athletics as we have them now, they'll abolish most of the coaches who believe in youngsters."

Dr. J. Hillis Miller, University of Florida, president of Southeastern Conference: "I suspect if you looked far enough you would find some of that in certain quarters but I am a little surprised to hear Dr. Moore said that. He must have some basis for it."

H. C. Willett, Southern Cal., former NCAA president: "We had serious problems in football 50

WHAT'S WITH LEON HARDEMAN?
It's a Different Game This Year

Tech Stretch Drive Up to Hardeman

Ace Halfback Not Old Self But Many Reasons for It

What's wrong with Leon Hardeman?

That's the most pertinent question at Georgia Tech, the question that if satisfactorily resolved might give the Jackets the hypo they need for their third straight Southeastern Conference football championship and their third straight big-bowl bid.

You might say there's nothing wrong with the mighty Muggsy that one great showing could not cure. But the thing goes deeper than that.

Possibly it began with Hardeman's luckless day of fumbles in the mucky 0-0 tie with Florida. That gave the saved-off halfback a mental hazard he has not licked yet.

Another section of the solution is that the demands of both offensive and defensive duty have robbed the 5-6, 172-pound Lafayette blockbuster of that extra fire and dash that made him the most feared runner in America last year.

Hardeman has played excellent defensive football. He can relax as a secondary sentry but it is not in him to pace himself on offense. He drives every ounce, every inch while running, misses the frequent rests he got during two-platoon days.

The last suggestion, and by all odds the most plausible, is that Hardeman's support is way off the standards of 1951 and 1952. His interference now is made up of men often weary from tackling as well as blocking. There are no Hal Millers or Lum Snyders or Jeff Knoxes to come off the bench fresh and bang out the tiny holes that were all Hardeman needed the last two seasons.

Head Coach Bobby Dodd professes to be puzzled. "We thought he'd have his best year," Dodd says. "He is in good condition. He has worked as hard or harder in practices and games than ever before. This is the first season he hasn't been bothered by injuries. And as far as I can tell from the games or the movies of them, Leon is running just as hard as ever. I think the truth is that he may be worn out from playing both ways and he isn't getting the blocking he used to. We just haven't the team we had before."

There is one thing about the case of Mr. Muggs. If he was anybody but Leon Hardeman, his recent WASHINGTON, Nov. 3 (AP)—The Washington Redskins reported today that both of the club's quarterbacks, Eddie LeBaron and Jack Scarbath, will be available for the game with the Chicago Cardinals on Sunday.

Scarbath missed the game with the Cleveland Browns last week because of a stiff neck. LeBaron was severely banged up in that game, suffering rib and neck injuries, but doctors cleared the hardy little fellow for heavy duty today.

Crackers' Mann Wins Decision Over Engel on TV or Not TV

Southern Talks Come to End

By JESSE OUTLAR
Constitution Sports Writer

NEW ORLEANS, La., Nov. 3 — Atlanta's Earl Mann won a split decision over Chattanooga's Joe Engel today in the television bout, feature event in what on the surface appeared to be a routine Southern Association meeting.

Though directors huddled for eight hours in privacy befitting an atom bomb display, loop president Charlie Hurth had only one interesting announcement.

His official communique said: "The TV status is unchanged." This means, of course, that individual clubs will continue to make the decision whether to TV or not to TV.

It spelled a victory for Mann and Eddie Glennon of Birmingham, only two operators who televised in the past.

Engel, who previously threatened to keep his team off the field unless cut in on the TV take, has reluctantly agreed to let the Lookouts go before the cameras again.

However, the Chattanooga Mahatma wants it thoroughly understood that his opposition to baseball TV has not subsided.

"It's the beginning of the end for the minors," he said. "People are not going to come out and buy what you'll deliver into their homes free."

Mann's stand is as it has been plan, won approval of the league in general.

Jordan Up, Tigers Drill For Miami

Littles in Hospital, Won't Make Trip

Special to The Constitution
AUBURN, Ala., Nov. 3—Head Coach Ralph Jordan came out of his sickbed today to supervise Auburn preparation for Friday night's game with Miami, but two other key Plains people went on the inactive list.

Right halfback Charlie Littles, out intermittently this year with a broken blood-vessel, was taken to a Montgomery hospital with what was feared to be a gall bladder ailment.

Line Coach Shot Senn, who like Jordan has had flu, went to Lee County Hospital. A slipped spinal disc was added to Senn's troubles today.

Neither Senn nor Littles is expected to accompany the Plainsmen to Miami this week.

Jordan got back on the job with little apparent effects from his siege. "We've got plenty of work to do," he said, "and we've got to do it in a hurry."

Auburn will be a two-touchdown favorite over Miami but Plainsmen coaches are alert for trouble on the Hurricanes' home field.

The Plainsmen will finish work for the game here tomorrow and fly to Miami Thursday.

TIGER SCRATCHES: Charlie Hataway, Al Braine and Ed Baker missed yesterday's rough work with bruises but will play Friday night. Auburn's rushing offense is 40 per cent better than in 1952. The Plainsmen already have gained 33 more yards than the entire 1,351-yard output of a year ago. With Littles out, Bobby Duke will step into the Vince Dooley-unit backfield this week while also holding down his regular job with the Bobby Freeman second unit. Quarterback-right half Joe Davis, seasonlong utilityman, will relieve him on both units.

not make the official minutes. However, it was discussed both in and out of the meeting room.

Sentiment among directors is against breaking the color line in 1954. Most of them agree with Huth, however, that this is a matter for individual owners to decide.

Mann, only owner with Negro players on his roster, reiterated his statement, "If we have any Negro players capable of making the Crackers next spring I'll make a decision at that time. At present I have no comment."

Much of today's program was devoted to study of a revised constitution submitted by Mann, Ed Barry of Memphis and Huth.

The directors did not give it the official stamp. Other changes will be made, and action on the matter will be taken at the next meeting. The date hasn't been set.

The group adopted a 1954 schedule. Atlanta will open the season in Mobile April 9, raise its home curtain April 13. The season closes Sept. 6 and the All-Star game is booked for July 15.

Since no further business was before the house, the second day of the meeting was canceled.

THE SPORTLIGHT

A Wonderful Tale: Keeler's Bob Jones Story

NEW YORK, Nov. 3 — Two books have appeared lately from stars who displayed their wares originally in the South, although both covered a lot more ground later on.

The first is O. B. Keeler's story of Bobby Jones and his 13 major golf championships. It's really a story of Bobby from the age of seven to the age of 28, when Jones retired.

But the story is the chronicle of those 13 national and international crowns.

The other is "The Herman Hickman Reader."

In the Bobby Jones Story there is a vivid contrast which adds flavor to the book. It might be added that Keeler, a brilliant writer, traveled some 120,000 miles to keep a first-hand record of every stroke Bob Jones made in tournaments.

The contrast in performance is contributed by Bob's golf. At the age of 14 he flared across the golfing world like a comet. I can testify that at that age he was as fine a shot-maker as he ever was later. What he lacked was experience. Great things were expected of him at once. When a chubby kid of 14, he could shoot 66's and 68's. But not in competition.

He went for seven long years without winning anything of importance. He was beaten by Chick Evans, Jess Sweetser, Walter Hagen, Gene Sarazen—by almost anyone who came along. From 14 to 21, he fell before the blades of nearly all who met him. Bob had about given up hope and then, at 21, his time had come.

From 1922 to 1930 Jones was something else again. In those nine years, he had "stormed the impregnable quadrilateral of golf," as George Trevor put it. He had won the four major championships of golf in one year. But, as O. B. points out, he had done something more. He had finished first or second 11 times in those 12 starts against the greatest golfers in the world. That, according to Keeler, was more important than even the famous grand slam.

This is a wonderful tale—this story of Bobby Jones by O. B. Keeler. It is well worth reading. It's the story of a great man by a great writer—the story of a man who performed incredible deeds.

"The Herman Hickman Reader" comes from a country boy—a great football player who has given you some of his literary

Dulles Doubts Reds Want Korea Peace Conference

Points to Reluctance of Moscow;
Ridgway Appears More Hopeful

By WALTER H. WAGGONER
New York Times News Service, Special to The Atlanta Constitution
WASHINGTON, Nov. 3—Secretary of State Dulles said today that the Communists may not want to hold a Korean peace conference.

The secretary, in news conference remarks later released for quotation, declared that "there is some reason on our part to fear that the Communists do not want to have serious talks about any concrete subject."

Dulles referred not only to what he called the "wooden inflexibility" of the Communist representatives now discussing the prospects for a Korean political conference at Panmunjom, but also to the reluctance of the Soviet Union to discuss Germany and Austria.

While the secretary was cautioning against "a confident view" that the Communists really want a Korean conference, Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, Army chief of staff, was expressing a more hopeful outlook.

RETURNS FROM TOUR

Ridgway, who returned this morning from a nine-day inspection tour of the Far East and Alaska, said on his arrival at the airport that he did not believe that the Communists would renew the fighting in Korea.

"I didn't see any evidence," he declared, "to indicate that the Communists won't abide by the armistice."

When Dulles was reminded that Arthur H. Dean, the U.S. representative now talking with the Communists at Panmunjom, had said he believed the Communists did want a political meeting, the secretary acknowledged that Moscow and Peking might differ in that respect, and he said he hoped they did.

He added, however, that his skepticism was based on "an over-all survey and the general reluctance of the Soviets to enter into discussions."

Asked whether he thought the Chinese were more anxious than Moscow for a Korean conference, or less so, the secretary replied: "I just don't know. They might be less anxious. But we continue to have hopes in that respect."

ALL OF A PATTERN

He said that the Soviet resistance to talks on Germany and Austria and the Communist "inflexibility" at Panmunjom were

"perhaps all of a pattern." "We hope very much," he continued, "that there will be a disposition to have political talks with respect to areas of tensions but there is, so far, very little to encourage us."

Dulles praised Dean highly for his "great skill, resourcefulness and patience" in handling the Panmunjom talks. His doubts about Communist willingness to hold a political conference appeared in rather sharp contrast, however, with Dean's earlier expressions of confidence.

SEEM ANXIOUS

Even today, reports attributed to high Allied sources in Panmunjom view the Communists as seeming to want a Korean peace conference badly enough to make some compromises on the terms for arranging it.

Before Dean left other State Department officials also said that the Chinese Reds, at least, seemed anxious to reach a Korean settlement through a political conference.

This anxiety was traced in part to the economic pressures on Peking developing from the highly effective Allied trade restrictions against the Communist mainland.

It is widely assumed that these restrictions would be substantially eased as soon as peace was restored in Korea and Red China lost its identification as an aggressor.

CREETED BY 6 NUNS

Quint Marie Dionne Starts Life in Convent

QUEBEC, Nov. 3 (AP)—Marie Dionne of the famous quintuplets today entered the cloistered life of a Roman Catholic convent.

Six of the 43 nuns at the Convent of Les Servantes du Tres Saint-Sacrement (Servants of the Blessed Sacrament) welcomed her with the kiss of peace to a life of prayer, silence and contemplation.

Clothed in a gray coat and blue hat with a red feather, she was accompanied by three of her 19-year-old quintuplet sisters—Yvonne, Annette and Cecile—her mother, Mrs. Olive Dionne; a married sister, Mrs. Maurice Girouard of Waterloo, Que., and an unmarried sister, Pauline.

The fifth quintuplet, Emille, remained at a convent at Nicolet, is studying household science with Annette and Cecile. Yvonne is a fine arts pupil in Montreal.

A few minutes after arrival Marie appeared behind a grill clothed in the somber black vestments with white veil of a postulant, or beginner, in the order. The grill was opened and Marie talked for a few moments with her sisters. Then she tearfully embraced them and her mother. Sobs and words of parting could be heard.

Marie will be a postulant for six months, then for two years a novitiate. If she wishes to continue her austere life, she must renew vows of poverty, chastity, obedience and silence every year for three years. After this, she may take her perpetual vows—renounce the world for the rest of her life.

Swiss Team Man Walks Out, Hits Red Tactics in Persuading Captive

PANMUNJOM, Wed., Nov. 4—The Swiss member of a neutral nations team supervising Communist explanations to Chinese prisoners walked out today in protest against tactics used by Red officers attempting to persuade a captive to return to communism.

The Red political officers, rebuffed overwhelmingly again by the anti-Communist PWs, had worked on the prisoner for more than an hour when the Swiss delegate walked out.

The prisoner was returned to his compound and the Neutral Nations Repatriation Commission met to decide on the next step.

The prisoners, hysterical, argumentative and weeping, went before Red explainers already stung by a 30-to-1 defeat in four previous sessions with balking PWs.

ONE RETURNS

In the first hour of interviews, only one of the prisoners elected to return to Red China where the Communists had promised them a happy homecoming, jobs and forgiveness.

One by one the prisoners, who shouted down a pre-interview attempt to "soften" them with loudspeakers blaring propaganda, shouted curses at the stiff-faced Chinese political officers and cried "Come with me to Formosa" when the explainers urged "Come home."

The prisoners first were asked to listen to a broadcast Communist plea, but they sang, shouted, marched and waved flags instead.

Then they marched in orderly fashion to a center where Communist agents tried to explain personally why the prisoners should give up their opposition to communism.

JEER BROADCAST

The prisoners responded with jeers and hoots that could be heard a mile away.

The Communists claimed their attempt to broadcast pleas to the prisoners was hampered by weak loudspeakers.

Dies of Injuries

STATESBORO, Nov. 3 (AP)—Taft Griffin, 43, of Claxton, died in a Bulloch County hospital today of automobile accident injuries. He received the injuries in a crash on U.S. 280 east of Claxton about nightfall Sunday.

By JAMES MORRISSEY

The Red announcers said: "We know that you were scared during the time of American custody but now the Neutral Nations Repatriation Commission can definitely guarantee you will go back to your homeland. They will protect you by all means. Don't be deceived. Make up your minds quickly and come home."

Hoots and jeers answered the plea. The 403 Chinese prisoners from Camp D-28, where a sensational murder inquiry was held this week, began moving into the interview tents at 9:51 a.m. (7:51 p.m. EST Tuesday).

SHIFT PROPAGANDA

The Red political agents shifted their propaganda barrage to the Chinese after cocky North Korean captives rejected repatriation 25 to 1. Only 19 of 483 North Koreans interviewed yesterday asked to go home.

The Communists for the second day tried their new method to weaken the captives' resistance to repatriation by attempting an hour-long "all is forgiven" loud-speaker appeal before the interview began.

Stanley snowed under Republican Ted Dalton to turn back the GOP's strongest attempt to win the governorship of the Old Dominion State in 30 years.

NEW YORK

New York—Democrat Robert F. Wagner Jr. ran two-to-one ahead of Republican Harold L. Riegelman and Independent Rudolph Halley to win election as mayor of New York City. Returns from 3,995 of the city's 4,217 election districts gave Wagner 970,723; Riegelman, 630,875, and Halley, 440,431.

In general, the returns were a bitter anniversary gift for President Eisenhower, who swept to office a year ago as the first Republican President in 20 years.

DOWN LINE

Although the races were local in character, Mr. Eisenhower served notice last week he wanted a Republican victory all down the line.

Republican national headquarters declined comment until the New Jersey results were firmly conclusive.

The Democrats had been expected to win the New York mayorality and the Virginia governorship. Virginia never has elected a Republican governor.

GOP FORT

But New Jersey is a traditional Republican stronghold.

The New Jersey balloting was viewed by Republican and Democratic national leaders as a test of the Eisenhower administration's popularity and policies.

Republican National Chairman Leonard W. Hall personally campaigned for the GOP candidates for governor and Congress.

Halsted Draws 5-7 Years in Trooper Assault

Robert Lee Halstead has been sentenced here to five-to-seven years on a charge of assault with intent to murder two Georgia state troopers.

Halstead, 39, pleaded guilty before Superior Judge George P. Whitman. He was accused of shooting troopers Crawford L. Hitt and J. M. Moses March 5, when they tried to arrest him for speeding.

Both men were seriously wounded but later recovered.

Halstead, who police said was fleeing from a cattle theft charge in West Virginia, was captured an hour later by two federal tax agents.

President Eisenhower gave his personal blessings to Troast and Hetfield. Some 100 other cities also elected mayors but many of them lacked clear-cut Democrat-Republican contests.

'Claghorn' Appears in New Role

Kenny Delmar, who gained fame for his portrayal of Senator Claghorn, the bumptious member of "Congress" who always had his views on any question, will be featured in the Kraft Television Theater production of "Dream House" tonight at 9 on WSB-TV.

Starring in the comedy drama will be Rod Steiger, Doris Rich and Jack Warden. Steiger portrays a lonely bachelor who falls in love with an equally lonely woman. The play is by Arthur Kavanagh, 25-year-old Broadway actor.

and was seen on eight color TV sets in NBC's Burbank studio. Inside each of the eight color sets was a conventional black-and-white receiver to permit better comparison between the two.

NOT TRUE, CBS SAYS

Flood of Complaints On Godfrey Reported

NEW YORK, Nov. 3 (AP)—The New York Post said today CBS was being flooded with letters from radio and television fans condemning Arthur Godfrey for firing Julius La Rosa.

The Post said there had been a "niagara of letters" critical of Godfrey "with only the merest trickle of support for the big boss of the TV and radio show."

A CBS spokesman insisted, however, there was no preponderance of criticism and reported it apparently "is the normal Godfrey type of mail." But he declined to estimate what percentage of those taking a stand on the firing of La Rosa Oct. 19 was pro-Godfrey and what percentage pro-La Rosa.

"Of the thousands of letters deluging the mail room," the Post declared, "an absurdly small percentage backed Godfrey."

La Rosa, meanwhile, prepared to head for Boston late in the day to rehearse for a five-day engagement. Tom Rockwell, president of General Artists Corp. with which La Rosa has a personal management contract, said future bookings for the 23-year-old former sailor had gone well beyond the $100,000 mark.

Dorothy McGuire of the singing McGuire Sisters on the Godfrey show, continued to maintain silence regarding her relationship with her soldier husband now in Korea. Sgt. John Brown. La Rosa has said he plans to marry Miss McGuire who has been separated from her husband several months.

Return Engagement

Richard Egan makes his second appearance on Ford Theater in the play "Double Bet," Thursday, Nov. 26, at 9:30 p.m. over WSB-TV.

Psychiatric Ward Goal For Dublin

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS

Constitution Washington Bureau
WASHINGTON, Nov. 3—Veterans' Administration officials will be urged here tomorrow by W. K. Barrett, director of the State Veterans' Service Department, to open up 500 additional beds at the Dublin VA Hospital for the accommodation of psychiatric cases among former Georgia servicemen.

Barrett, accompanied by Comdr. H. L. Davidson of the Georgia Disabled American Veterans, will call on VA Administrator H. V. Higley for that purpose.

Both Barrett and Davidson said there are now some 578 veterans psychiatric cases at the state mental institution at Milledgeville which cannot be accommodated at regular VA hospitals in the state.

"The Lenwood Hospital at Augusta is the only VA hospital now being operated for this purpose," Barrett said. "It is crammed full and cannot take additional patients."

"Other bed facilities could be provided easily at the Dublin VA hospital, which is now staffed for only 450 general medical and surgical cases, although built originally to accommodate around 1,500."

Similar requests made to the VA in the past have met with objection because of the VA economy program. Barrett, who is president of the National Association of State Directors of Veterans' Affairs, is hopeful of getting Higley to approve the plan.

CRASH AFTERMATH—Fred Andrews (left), and Bernard Garrett hold broken chairs in which several of their playmates were sitting when 1½-ton truck swerved into the Andrews yard. Richard Fanning, 50, driver of the truck, said his brakes failed as he was approaching Simpson Road on Anderson Avenue. Mrs. Laura Andrews who rushed from the house in a vain attempt to grab the children from the truck's path, and two small girls were injured in the accident. One of them, Gwendolyn McMullan, 9, was in critical condition at Grady Hospital yesterday.

Tighe Defends Lenwood Hospital

Dr. Leo R. Tighe, manager of Lenwood Hospital in Augusta, yesterday declared that the Veterans Administration mental institution "has been inspected and approved by top VA officials on 15 different occasions during the past seven years."

on Eighth Dist. Rep. Don Wheeler's statement Monday that he will demand an investigation of Lenwood, to prove or disprove charges made by an Atlantan that the hospital is being "cruelly mismanaged."

Gerald E. Wilcox, writing under the pen name Thomas G. E. Wilkes, charged in his book "He'll Cauldron," that Lenwood officials are ignoring diet, sanitation, religious life, recreation and medical treatment of patients at the hospital. Wilcox was a pa-

State Game Audit Shows $600 Bull, Wild Turkeys

A $600 purebred Black Angus bull and 50 wild turkeys are part of the equipment of the State Game and Fish Department.

Purchases of the bull and the turkeys were shown today in the annual audit of the department in the detailed list of $56,144 in expenditures for equipment in the fiscal year ended last June 30.

State Auditor B. E. Thrasher Jr. said the bull was needed on a farm which the department is required to operate in connection with one of its federal Pittman-Robertson restocking projects. The turkeys were used for restocking a game refuge.

The audit shows that the department spent a total of $735,344 on operations last year. Of that amount $418,231 went for personal services and $38,060 was spent on land, buildings and permanent improvements.

The department collected $552,273 from sale of hunting and fishing licenses and from fees and fines. It also received $134,764 from the federal government in Pittman-Robertson and Dingell-Johnson funds.

The audit reported some minor discrepancies in expense accounts amounting to approximately $30 and noted that salary overpayments of $736 to previous directors, as reported in earlier audits, are still outstanding.

H-Plant Housing Is Assailed

A nationally circulated magazine article published this week, charged that millions of dollars have been wasted by the federal government in housing project at the Savannah River H-Bomb plant.

A Harper's magazine article, written by George McMillan of Aiken, S.C., said some of the most prominent politicians in Georgia and South Carolina are involved in what he called a fiasco. The South Carolinian charged that nearly 10 million dollars had been paid by the Atomic Energy Commission to private contractors for housing fiascos so convoluted that atomic construction workers have refused to live in them.

Potential Powder Keg, Mayor Tags Mideast

By HERMAN HANCOCK

The Middle East is the world's most potentially explosive powder keg, Atlanta's Mayor Hartsfield said last night as he and a group of mayors of American cities returned from an 18-day tour of Mediterranean and Middle East countries.

Interviewed by telephone in New York, Hartsfield emphasized the necessity for solving the economic and political problems to avoid a possible all-out conflict of clashing interests. The mayor led the party as president of the American Municipal Association.

The mayor said tension between Arab Jordan and Israel is evident and is mounting. He regards it as dangerous and insists that it must recede or explode.

Israel and Turkey are the most industrious and most progressive of the countries visited, the mayor said and "we crammed every minute possible into a study of the countries we visited in an effort to get a clear picture of the situation."

AREA TO WATCH

"The Middle East is the area to watch and also to do something about, if possible," Hartsfield asserted. "They are working night and day in Tel Aviv and Haifa and other Israel cities. It is a revelation to see what is being accomplished."

"And it also is something to see how modern Turkey has become and how that country is attempting to tie itself to the Western nations and to establish the private enterprise system."

The mayor said the party of American Municipal Association officials was received formally and feted by governors, mayors and other officials and that the group had an audience with Pope Pius at his summer home at Castle Gondolf.

LEAVES OLD WORLD

"Coming from Jordan to Israel is just like leaving an old rustic world and entering a modern one," Hartsfield asserted. "We

Usual Water Pressure Due Tomorrow

Atlanta's water pressure was off and on easily even when returning to normal last night.

As waterworks officials planned a meeting today to study Monday's big water main break.

Paul Weir, waterworks superintendent, said that as a result of Monday's break—biggest in the city's history—the department will recommend to City Council that all high pressure valves at pumping stations be mechanized so they can be turned

It took work crews two hours to close the valves after Monday's break.

Weir said pressure will be back to normal by tomorrow and that meanwhile the pressure is high enough to meet any emergency.

A three-foot main broke under tons of pressure shortly after 2 p.m. Monday near the Hemphill avenue pumping station, spewing 3,000,000 gallons of water into the area and flooding Northside Dr.

NW, at the railroad underpass.

Four persons were saved from submerged cars.

21 miles of new freight cars added by Santa Fe last year!

Remember when you used to count freight cars as a kid?

How would you like to count and stencil the "stamp of newness" on 21 miles of them?

That's what Santa Fe did last year—added 21 miles of new cars to its great fleet of modern freight cars.

And so it goes—year after year—until today there are 84,898 freight cars serving shippers on the Santa Fe.

With this building new program, Santa Fe is meeting the ever-growing need for moving vast tons of wheat, livestock, perishable foods, minerals and merchandise to the markets of America.

And many of these cars are new and special types to serve shippers in new and better ways—like the "MTC 3150" mechanical refrigerator car that works like your home freezer.

School Bonds Needed Now, Jarrell Warns

By HERMAN HANCOCK

Miss Ira Jarrell, city school superintendent, yesterday appealed for support for a $13,500,000 bond issue to meet immediate demands for new school facilities with a warning "it is cheaper to build schools than jails."

Speaking at the weekly luncheon meeting of the Atlanta Kiwanis Club, Miss Jarrell warned that an inadequate educational system will inevitably result in the need for more jails.

Kiwanians stood to applaud her as she concluded an address citing achievements and assessing the problems schools face in the near future to continue "good community schools for education of children—the most important subject in the world."

"Atlanta schools are expanding faster than ever before," she asserted. "We now have more than 86,000 students enrolled and will have approximately 94,000 before the end of the year. We must provide for another estimated 13,000 by 1955 and 23,000 others by 1960. We need a $13,500,000 bond issue now to meet 1955 requirements."

She outlined physical progress beginning with the $9,000,000 bond issue of 1946. She declared $1,500,000 was added to the bond issue from current revenues, but Atlanta schools still lacked $2,000,000 of meeting the need then.

"When the Plan of Improvement added 39 additional Fulton County schools to our system, they had an immediate need for another $5,000,000 in bonds," she said.

"We arranged to finance construction of $7,010,000 in new schools through the state school building authority, but that just met our minimum needs."

She said 26 additional schools are now needed and that they will cost an estimated $13,500,000 which the Board of Education has asked in a projected 1954 bond issue.

Dr. E. L. Floyd, liaison officer between Atlanta schools and colleges and universities, introduced Miss Jarrell.

Fee Changes

License fees for dealers in household appliances where such sales are a sideline will be scaled down in 1954, but licenses on cigarette vending machines will be hiked from $2.50 per machine a year to $12. Insurance premium taxes also will be extended to include all types of insurance. Payment of one per cent premium on life, casualty and liability policies and

Mrs. Kneisley Sworn To Avondale Board

Mrs. Ralph W. Kneisly, housewife, was sworn in last night as Avondale Estates' first woman city commissioner after defeating William F. Bishop in an election to fill the two-year unexpired term of the late D. L. Stokes.

Lee R. Potter, an official of the Southern Wood Preserving Co. and Ira E. Cobb, building contractor, were elected to four-year terms as commissioners, but won't take office until Jan. 1, 1954.

Potter and Cobb defeated Col. Felix E. Gross and R. D. Spitzer for the four-year terms to the five-man commission.

Mrs. Kneisly is vice-president of the Avondale Garden Clubs and has been active in civic affairs in the Estates area for a number of years. She took office as soon as election returns were declared official.

Morris Elected; DeKalbVoteThin

An "extremely light" vote was recorded in seven DeKalb County polling precincts yesterday as J. L. Morris was re-elected without opposition to a five-year term as a member of the DeKalb County Board of Education.

Mrs. Katherine Mann, DeKalb ordinary, said no compilation of returns would be made until tomorrow. Only voters living in the unincorporated areas of DeKalb that Morris will represent on the school board went to the polls.

Regional Soil Staffs Needed, Ex-Congressman Pace Says

Former Rep. Steve Pace, for many years an agricultural leader in Congress, said here yesterday there is a need for maintaining regional technical staffs for soil conservation projects that cross state lines.

Pace said he agreed with Benson's theory that the states should assume more responsibility in such work but added that there are times when major problems extend beyond state lines.

N.Y. Bankers Consider Go Ahead On Stone Mountain Park Project

New York financiers may work toward the financing of the proposed $3,500,000 Stone Mountain Memorial Park without assurance of early appropriations of state funds, DeKalb Commissioner Scott Candler said yesterday.

There still can be no prediction made as to when such a move will be made, however, Candler added. He is chairman of the State Parks Authority that has control of the Stone Mountain project.

Originally, Candler said, New York bankers agreed to help finance the project through a revenue certificate issue if the state would show its good faith in the park by purchasing the mountain and necessary surrounding acreage.

WITHHOLDS MONEY

The Legislature authorized an expenditure of $800,000 for the mountain purchase, but Gov. Tammidge said he would not appropriate the money until the state was in better financial condition. With the state funds in the balance, Candler said, the bankers refused to move ahead on the financing plan.

During a recent conference in Washington, D.C., however, the bankers told Candler that financial conditions were improving and that they would look into the possibilities of financing the land purchase without state funds.

CUT PROJECT COST

"That would mean we would cut the project cost down to $2,500,000 and count on the state funds for later use in developing the park," Candler said.

The parks authority chairman emphasized, however, that the bankers would give no indication of when definite action would be taken.

DeKalb County has an option on the Stone Mountain property which it will turn over to the parks authority when purchasing funds are available, Candler said.

New Home Building Up In DeKalb

Residential building in DeKalb County during October was up over September home construction, but was less than building in October, 1952, Leon O'Neal, county building inspector, said yesterday.

Commercial construction, however, was higher during last month than both comparative periods, the official added.

The county during October issued permits for the construction of 227 housing units valued at $1,721,000, O'Neal reported. In September, 224 permits for $1,631,000 in construction were issued, he said.

Records showed DeKalb during October, 1952, authorized the building of 272 residential units valued at $1,879,400.

Permits for 14 commercial building projects valued at $156,000 were issued during October, 1953. These figures showed a monetary increase over the 16 projects authorized during September, valued at $132,000.

The county issued permits for eight commercial projects valued at $143,500 during October, 1952.

South Fulton Hospital Fund Session Topic

The South Fulton Cities Hospital Authority, newly revamped organization striving for a hospital in the South Fulton area, will decide tonight how to raise $500,000.

Adopting a policy that "money talks," the board of trustees of the group will lay immediate plans for raising the funds that will be the public part in such a hospital.

The Rev. John Summer, executive secretary of the group, said the public was invited to the meeting which will be held at the East Point Third Ward Community House at Brookdale Park, beginning at 7:30 p.m.

This will be the first meeting of the authority since Fayette and Clayton County trustees pulled out of the old tri-county authority two weeks ago.

The split of the old authority was made so that the counties could each seek a hospital instead of having one to serve a three-county area.

Meanwhile, the Reverend Summer has lodged another plea with the Fulton-DeKalb Hospital Authority to authorize a South Fulton Hospital to treat indigent patients, thus receiving financial aid from that group.

Ohioan Indicted In $19,000 Safe Burglary Here

Ohioan Roger Leroy Gaines, 32, was indicted yesterday on a charge of burglary in connection with the $19,000 safe cracking at Lanier Brothers Wholesale Grocery, 1057 Lee St., SW, six weeks ago.

Assistant Sol. Gen. Carl Copeland said extradition proceedings have been filed against Gaines who is held in Cleveland in lieu of $25,000 bond.

Detectives said the grocery safe was punched open Sept. 28 after a hole was ripped through a four-inch concrete roof. About $6,900 of the loot was in cash. The remainder was in checks.

Gaines, a Negro, told an Atlanta detective who talked to him in Cleveland that he made his living from gambling.

POLICE BLOTTER

Clear Bus Driver and Pedestrian

By RICHARD ASHWORTH

After hearing more than two hours of testimony, Traffic Judge Wilson Brooks yesterday dismissed charges against J. O. Kelly, 42, of 1065 Peoples St., SW, a trolley operator, and Samuel K. Thomas, 58, of 225 Lakemoore Dr., NE, a pedestrian.

Sgt. G. L. Newton and other witnesses testified that Thomas became frightened Saturday afternoon as a light changed at Peachtree St. and North Ave., NE, leaving him in line of traffic. Witnesses said he ran from a crosswalk into the trolley. He suffered a slight laceration of the right leg.

Both were booked on charges of violating pedestrians' rights and duties.

Illicit Liquor Seized

Patrolmen E. E. Michael and D. W. Britt yesterday confiscated 69 gallons of moonshine whisky in a car parked with the motor running at Pine St. and Angier Ave., NE, and hidden in a nearby field.

The patrolmen reported that as they approached the car a Negro fled on foot. Six gallons of liquor were found in the car, and the remainder in the field, the patrolmen said.

2 Molesting Cases

Two cases of molesting were reported to police yesterday by a woman and two sisters, one 22 years old and the other 19.

The woman said a white man in a 1953 model car stopped alongside her as she walked along Victory Dr., SW, and exposed himself.

The sisters said they were walking along Pryor St., SW, near Woodward Ave., SW, when a dark-haired man about 25 drove alongside in an old model automobile and made lewd statements and exposed himself.

Scuffle at Hospital

Mrs. E. D. Lineberger of 2025 Peachtree Rd., NE, employed in the office of Fulton Hospital, 907 Edgewood Ave., NE, yesterday reported to police she was attacked by a nurse whom she attempted to prevent from entering the office.

Mrs. Lineberger told police that when she tried to stop the nurse from reaching files which, Mrs. Lineberger said, she had been ordered not to allow anyone to tamper with, the woman said, "I've never had a chance to get hold of you."

The woman, she related to police, grabbed her around the neck and pulled her back into the room, knocking her to her knees, holding her to the floor by the shoulders and dragging her across the floor.

Mrs. Lineberger also told police the woman entered the office about a week ago and "tried to take over."

Mrs. Lineberger gave police the name of the woman involved in the reported attack.

Nobody Claims Hillpine Drive Cave; Neighbors Fear Children's Trap

Police yesterday discovered an underground cave on Hillpine drive, NE, with one room large enough to accommodate eight to 10 people—but no one would claim it.

Pt. E. C. Carter and W. D. Parham said the cave, apparently dug by a group of young boys to use as a clubhouse, was located 500 feet to the rear of 800 Hillpine Dr. in a wooded area. It had an entrance approximately two feet in circumference and eight feet deep, they said.

The passage widened to 10 feet at the bottom and a small passage led to the "club room."

Officers quoted Mrs. H. A. Spencer of 814 Hillpine Dr. as saying she had been the owner of the lot but had given this portion to the city for a park. The Parks department and city officials reported, however, the land was refused when offered to them 13 years ago, they said.

The patrolmen said neighbors told them they regard the cave as a hazard and are afraid of a cave-in that might trap some children playing there.

Chamblee Seeks Club At Lawson

A plan to request the Federal government to transfer part of Lawson General Hospital facilities to the city of Chamblee will be placed before the Chamblee City Council for approval Friday, Mayor Woody B. Malone said.

"I am requesting the council to ask the government for the former officers' club and the swimming pool on the Lawson General Hospital property," Malone said.

Malone said some sort of recreational and educational facilities to be placed before the Chamblee City Council for approval Friday, Mayor Woody B. Malone said.

The mayor said he has been trying to have the council issue revenue bonds to provide a teenage center for Chamblee youngsters.

Malone said he is quite sure the government will transfer the requested property to the city as surplus government property.

The city plans to use the club for roller skating, dances, and a health and educational center.

Malone said the club has a completely equipped kitchen, a large dining space and facilities for a bowling alley.

The Atlanta Naval Air Station has been using the swimming pool during the summer months but Malone felt a suitable arrangement could be worked out with the naval authorities.

"We would like to have the pool but if we can't get it, we'll make out very well with the clubhouse," the Chamblee mayor said.

'BEAT THE TIGER' THEME

Tech's Homecoming Fling Starts Friday

Georgia Tech's campus will take on that side-show look this week end as alumni from as far back as the Class of '03 returns for homecoming.

Climax of the week end will be Tech's football battle with Clemson.

Homecoming week end will begin Friday afternoon when Charlie Yates, '35, will retire as president of the 7,000-member Tech Alumni Association and turn over the gavel to president-elect Ivan Allen Jr., '33.

John Stanton, '22, also of Atlanta, becomes the new vice-president; David Arnold, '18, of Griffin, vice-president; and Paul Duke, '45, grid star, will take over as treasurer.

BEAT THE TIGER
Decorations on a "Beat the Tiger" theme will be judged Friday night by three prominent Atlanta businessmen. The coveted Campus Bulldog Club cup goes to the winning fraternity.

The "Parade of the Ramblin' Wrecks"—the noisiest affair of the festivities gets under way at 10:30 a.m. Saturday. The parade which features engineer-designed "sport models" will begin at Fourth and Fowler Streets on the campus and will rattle along to Hemphill Avenue. The traditional "Gold Plated Spittoon" goes to the winner of this event.

A court of Atlanta's prettiest sub-debs will judge the next event—the freshman "Cake Race" at Rose Bowl field which precedes the grid battle.

ANNUAL LUNCHEON
Alumni will be entertained at the association's annual homecoming "barbecue" luncheon in the Tech gymnasium at 12 noon. Tables will be set up by classes.

Final event of the week end will be the homecoming dance at Tech gymnasium from 8 p.m. until midnight. Albert Coleman and orchestra will furnish the music. During intermission, new members of ANAK, campus honor society, will be tapped in the traditional ceremony.

Prisoner Tears
Out Plumbing,
Cell Wall Bricks
A prisoner being held on a larceny charge yesterday tore out his city jail cell plumbing and bricks with his bare hands, police said.

Pt. R. J. Bradley, third floor turnkey, said the Negro, listed as Tim Rogers, 36, of Route 2, Commerce, was booked Monday night on a disorderly conduct-larceny charge.

For almost five hours yesterday Rogers shouted in his cell and tore out plumbing fixtures, pulled bricks from the wall and tore up a mattress before he was transferred to a mental ward in Fulton Tower, Bradley said.

Northside's Policy Costs Cut Deeply

Northside residents are reaping the double benefits of reduced fire insurance rates and increased fire protection from fire house construction in the area, Alderman Cobb Torrance said yesterday.

New firehouses have pushed the insurance rate down in Buckhead and have saved an estimated $250,000 for residents in lower premiums, Torrance said. He is chairman of the City Council fire insurance rates committee.

The rates were dropped Oct. 1, after the firehouse at Northside drive and Conway drive, NW, was opened.

The rate was lowered enough to compensate for the scheduled opening on Dec. 15 of the Bolton fire station," Torrance said.

DUE TO GO LOWER
The present rate in Buckhead is 28 cents on the standard dwelling, but with water facilities being extended in the area to keep up with the rapid home expansion, the rate is expected to go even lower.

Torrance said water supply and pressure and nearness to the fire station are figured into the lowering of the rates.

Atlanta laid 96 miles of water mains in the past 15 months but still has about 225 miles to lay to insure proper supply to all sections of the city, Torrance said.

MOVES AT FAST PACE
"Only 900 miles of water pipe were put down in the last 50 years so the city is moving at a much faster rate than formerly," he said.

"We have been promised additional funds for fire stations and with standard water facilities we are aiming for a rate of 22 cents on all dwellings within the city limits," Torrance said.

At present only dwellings within the old city limits have the 22-cent rate.

State School Group Meets Here Friday

The Georgia Association of School Administrators will hold its 27th annual convention at the Henry Grady Hotel Friday and Saturday.

J. D. Salter of Waycross is president of the association; N. A. Rogers of Franklin is vice president and Clayton W. Peacock of Milledgeville, secretary-treasurer.

The association will hold panel discussions Friday on the importance of public relations programs and will hear an address Friday night by William A. Early, president of the National Education Association.

Problems of school administration, teacher certification and personnel recruitment will be discussed Saturday by officials of the GEA and the State Department of Education, including State School Supt. M. D. Collins.

Mormons To Do Own Building as Union Walks Out

Mormons in Atlanta plan to build their new $150,000 church at 1450 Ponce de Leon Ave., NE, by themselves, a Mormon building official declared here yesterday after members of Local 225 of the Carpenters' Union walked off the job.

Union members walked away when volunteer Mormon workers insisted on helping with the job under the church's building plan. Under the plan, 30 per cent of the cost of a new church is contributed by local members—in cash or volunteer labor. Mormon Church headquarters in Salt Lake City, Utah, contributes the other 70 per cent.

Union officials declined to comment on the situation but L. E. Evans, superintendent of Mormon church construction, said the work will proceed with volunteer labor and estimated the job could be completed in about eight months.

Big Majority Approves Tennessee Amendments

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Nov. 4 (AP)—Tennesseans voted by whopping majorities today to lengthen the governor's term to four years, raise the pay of legislators, and make other changes in the state's 83-year-old unamended Constitution.

Returns from more than half the state's 2,400 precincts showed approval of the eight charter amendments by majorities of close to 2-to-1 in extremely light voting.

Thirteen previous attempts to revise the antiquated document met defeat either because of the complicated procedure for ratifying Legislature-proposed amendments or a reluctance to call an unlimited convention.

The changes voted on today were drafted by a limited convention called under provisions of a 1951 legislative act which was upheld by the State Supreme Court.

One of the eight proposals submitted today would change the amending process to specifically provide for a limited convention.

The other amendment would change the gubernatorial veto, abolish the poll tax, prohibit the Legislature from passing "ripper" bills, provide an optional "home rule" plan for cities, and authorize the consolidation of city and county governmental functions.

Under the amendment boosting legislators' pay, the lawmakers would receive $10 daily in salary during the legislative session and $5 daily for expenses.

The 1951 Legislature circumvented the constitutional provision requiring payment of the poll tax, and the amendment merely removes from the Constitution any reference to the tax.

Mississippi's White Urges Equal Schools

JACKSON, Miss., Nov. 3 (AP)—Gov. Hugh White today urged the Mississippi Legislature to fulfill what he termed state's moral obligation to raise and equalize the level of education for all children, regardless of race or color.

In his message to the joint houses of the Legislature at the opening of their special session, White asked the lawmakers to go farther than just equalizing Negro and white schools and pull up the entire educational standard.

"Regardless of the decision of the U.S. Supreme Court (on segregation), or any other court, our purpose should and must be the highest possible level of educational opportunity for all of the children of this state within our . . . ability to pay," he said.

The governor left no doubt that Mississippi wants to continue its segregated school system, but struck a more moral chord than just appeasing the Negro population.

White said that to delay re-vamping the state's horse-and-buggy school system would just "add that much more fuel to the fire which is constantly lapping at the fundamentals we are determined to preserve."

White forcefully drew the picture of glaring inequalities between white rural schools and white city schools, which he called as great as those between some Negro and white institutions.

He said the Mississippi system ranks 48th in salaries and expenditure per student and was in grave need of rebuilding.

"It is not like Mississippi," he said, "to continue to be satisfied with eternally taking highest honors for last place."

Mrs. Taylor Gets Action

Working mothers who have been doing quite a lot of lady-like howling about the failure of income tax laws to recognize the cost of employing nursemaids as a business expense, will be pleased to know that action is coming up.

Rep. Ed McGarity of Henry County has dispatched to his colleagues over the state copies of a measure which he will introduce when the General Assembly reconvenes here this month. He asks them to study his bill and give it their support—a thing which will bring working mothers rallying enthusiastically.

True it's a state bill and, if passed, will get relief from state taxes only, but it's a beginning and there's considerable hope in the land that Georgia congressmen will get the same kind of legislation through in Washington.

Brown-eyed Sara Ellis Taylor, the McDonough mother who has probably done more than any woman in Georgia to get action in the matter, has been going around to meetings of business and professional women, button-holing legislators and studying income tax laws. She thinks that there are several exemptions that a working woman might be honestly entitled to, among them the expense of hiring someone to look after elderly dependent parents. But maturer political minds have warned her that to overload the bill will be to kill it.

So the McGarity bill, as it will be introduced, calls for deducting the expense of providing for the care of children under 16 years of age, on condition that the care of the child "must be provided in order to enable the taxpayer to be gainfully employed."

Mrs. Taylor, a McDonough doctor's daughter, who works in the office of the Clerk of Superior Court in Henry County, saw the necessity of such a bill when she and her husband, J. S. Taylor, paid their income taxes. She has small children and must employ a maid to look after them while she helps supplement the family income. She realized that where a woman was a widow and had the entire support of the family on her shoulders the tax was even more unfair.

A great many working mothers have noted the inequity in allowing a business man to charge off his secretary's salary as a business expense and not allowing the same to a business woman with a nursemaid doing her job at home. But not many have worked as hard as Mrs. Taylor has to get action.

It might be helpful for those who are eager to see the bill passed to communicate their feelings to their state representatives and senators before the General Assembly reconvenes Nov. 15.

Tubable Separates Triumph

By AGNES MCCARTY

In this winter's fashion story the girl wearing laundered clothes triumphs as strongly as a Louisa May Alcott heroine.

A "washed out look" is desirable in the new scheme of tubable-separates. Pastel plaids in gentle blues and pinks are used in all-around pleated skirts that can be cleaned with soap and water and hung up to dry without qualms about ironing the pleats straight. The water drips off and pleats remain in place. Colors do not fade out and straight skirts resist sagging.

The price is right. Money is saved in the initial cost as well as on the upkeep of these wool-textured fabrics.

Pleated plaid skirts are priced at $7.98. Featured on these pages are two examples. Cardigan sweater worn with washable skirt is cable-stitched and priced at $10.95. Sweetheart-necked pull-over costs $7.98.

A patterned jersey blouse with three-quarter sleeves and a double row of buttons down the front is also washable and costs $10.95. It's teamed with a gray straight-front skirt that features a flaring back panel and slit pockets at the hip line. Sudsable skirt price is $10.98.

INSTRUCTIONS SIMPLE

Laundering instructions for skirts are simple. Use lukewarm water with a mild soap or detergent and gently squeeze water through fabric. Rubbing isn't necessary. Rinse twice in lukewarm water.

After washing squeeze out water gently by hand beginning at top and running hand down to bottom. Repeat several times. Shake garment well. Hang garment top up pinned straight to a hanger. Should be ready to wear when dry but if you prefer the band may be pressed slightly with an iron set at a very low heat.

Children Can Miss Mother More Than Is Realized

In our town there are many children. All, at one time, another, shout, scream, or cry. One little girl seems to cry all the time.

When the little girl's family first moved to the town, neighbors used to hear her scream and her mother scream back at her. One neighbor finally said to another, "Is something wrong with that child?" The neighbor said no, the child wasn't sick, but the mother was. The mother had an incurable disease.

A few weeks later the little girl began coming over to play with the children of the neighbor who had inquired about the noise. She seemed perfectly amiable and sweet when alone with the other children and was invited back.

She came often. One day, though, she brought a bottle of red nail polish with her and applied it to the chrome work of the neighbor's new car. The neighbor sighed, raged and then went to the telephone.

CLEAN UP ORDERED

The grandmother answered at the other end. "Jennie just painted my new car with red nail polish," the neighbor reported. "If you will send her back, I will give her a bottle of polish remover and she can get it off." The grandmother said that was a splendid idea.

Jennie returned, but not happily. She was dragged by Grandma and howled her pretty head off.

"Why can't you ever be a good girl with your mother in there dying?" Grandma demanded.

The neighbor became sympathetic. "Do you think she should be told that?" she asked. "Don't be silly," retorted Grandma. "She hears it all the time. Why shouldn't she?"

"And you'd think that knowing how sick her mother is, she'd behave. I think they ought to have her psychoanalyzed. Something's wrong with this child."

Something certainly is. Whose fault is it?

FEAR SEPARATION

Children love their mothers terribly. The event they most fear is separation from them. All too often, deep within themselves, they assume responsibility and guilt for that separation when it comes.

Dr. Ralph D. Rabinovitch, chief of the children's service at the University of Michigan neuropsychiatric clinic, told not long ago of his work with various unhappy adopted children.

"I was only 4 years old once and I got mad one day and I tried to make me some pancakes. I messed them all up," said an 8-year-old boy. "So she just went off and left me. I'm sorry about the pancakes."

A little girl, 10, said, "My mother was real nice. . . . One day she told me not to take my sister's doll to school and I took it and fell on the ice and broke it. Now I dream how nice she was to me and I'm sad about my mother. I want to go back."

'Dedicate Yourself,' Says Leader

By YOLANDE GWIN

People the world over are dedicating themselves "to a more worthwhile life" according to a Baptist leader here.

Mrs. C. D. Creasman of Donelson, Tenn., for many years stewardship director for the Woman's Missionary Union of the Southern Baptist Convention is here to attend the annual meeting of the BWU Auxiliary to the Atlanta Assn. of Baptist Churches now in session.

BUSINESS GROUPS

"There is a noticeable increase in work among young people and among businesswomen," she said. "Young people have grasped the seriousness of life. They know that there is more to living than just having a good time. Fun is fine and they should have their share, but they should plan their lives for a future of worthwhile projects."

"Businesswomen are rearranging their time budget in order to devote more hours to church work. In our business groups we have noticed that in comparison to the time a housewife can give to various church activities, her business counterpart is on an equal basis. It is just a question of arranging schedules."

Mrs. Creasman, en route to her Tennessee home from a field working assignment in New Mexico, spoke yesterday on "Myself and I."

DEVELOPS PERSONALITIES

"It is very important that personalities be developed and directed toward more vital things. We must remember that in our way of life the state exists for the individual. In contrast, the individual exists for the state in a communistic area. These two phases of life should be forever kept before us as we strive to do more and more for the church."

The Atlanta Auxiliary, which is headed by Mrs. Sherwood Astin is said to be the largest in the world. There are 102 member churches, 562 organizations and 16,000 members. The two-day meeting was held at the Druid Hills Baptist Church.

Swedish Student To Address PTA

The "brigadiers" will participate in a two-hour house-to-house solicitation from 7 to 9 p.m. Tuesday, Nov. 10, Mrs. Taylor explained.

Miss Hart To Be Feted

Homemaker Is Rejected By Young Married Women

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I have been married quite happily for several years and have two lovely children. I get along famously with elderly folk and children. I just feel at ease with them, as with grandmothers and babies.

However, young married women generally seem pretty cool towards me. They more or less stand off and "eye" me even when we are chatting. It disturbs me quite a bit, but I haven't the least idea how to cope with it. I know I have a pronounced inferiority complex, and once I thought I was imagining this remoteness, but lately it seems to be getting worse.

In school days I had similar difficulties and my daddy said it was envy; he told me to just ignore it. I sing very well and have participated in numerous plays, operettas and radio shows in this town.

Please don't think I am horribly conceited; I'm not. . . . At times I become so discouraged with myself that I look in a mirror only to apply make-up.

DEAR R. J.: Shyness and uneasiness in social situations are rooted in hostile feelings, actually. Beneath a purring manner, you are unconsciously competitive and antagonistic towards comparable women your age, and they sense it, which accounts for their wary scrutiny.

Your disposition is to stand apart from girls your age, rather than to merge with the group, because you want to be noticed. Moreover, you'd like your accomplishments to seem offhand, as if they just happened, without design or striving on your part.

The remedy for your difficulty is to become more aware of the ambitious nature of your behavior. Then make up your mind what you really want—these matrons' liking or their admiring envy. To be popular, one must be sincerely and fondly interested in others, without critical bias, and without the itch to impress. M. H.

Bringing Up Baby

Hints Collected by Mrs. Ben Cohen
(Mother of 5)

Crying is a perfectly natural part of a young baby's life. Hungry? Pin sticking the little one? Need a diaper change? Got a bit of colic? All these "reasons why" can be and are handled from day to day. But new things to cry about come into any baby's world. Even a normal, healthy infant will cry for things he wants and at those he doesn't want. But with patience and perception, it's amazing how soon even brand new mothers learn to distinguish between legitimate crying and unnecessary tears.

You too can have "Quads." Gerber's new Cereal "Quads" that is! Small size boxes of Rice, Barley, Oatmeal, and Cereal Food (a mixed cereal) all packaged together for easy use, convenient storage. Like Gerber's regular cereals they provide baby with the variety he wants and needs, the bland flavors and smooth consistency he likes. All fortified with iron, calcium and B-vitamins. Once baby samples the "Quads" and lets you know his favorites you can get Gerber's regular size packages.

Cries from stinging eyes during shampoo time can often be avoided if you rub a bit of vaseline over baby's eyebrows and nose. Wonderful how it stops suds from trickling into little eyes.

Bib tip! Large plastic bibs really cover baby, keep clothes cleaner. And once over with a damp cloth, food dribbles disappear.

Gerber's Strained Egg Yolks are a valuable addition to baby's diet. Because they're rich in the iron, Vitamin A and protein growing bodies need. And they have a custard-like texture and fresh-egg flavor babies love.

Sterilized for baby's protection, too.

DAILY GUIDE—This is a day with the accent on youth, beauty, and social graces. It is an excellent day on which to pass along some kindness or show extra affection. Plan some pleasant entertainment and ask friends to show you. It is naturally a good day for the ladies to shop, especially for home decorations, pretty clothes and luxurious foods. Take time out to say something pleasant to someone. Those most likely to find themselves popular are those with birthdays around the middle of October. For those this is a good time to attend to grooming, to entertain or accept invitations. It would not be wise to start any important project at this time as it would almost certainly be delayed or complicated.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY, SCORPIO! The advice above applies very definitely to you, and for you the best time to get under way for anything important would be after Nov. 24. The real start of a new cycle begins for you as the new year begins. You will be feeling ambitious then, I'm sure, and will need to choose carefully as decisions made this year (counting from your birthday) are likely to remain in operation for some time. Responsibility and possibly restrictions will be your lot for awhile. Tests of strength and character are to be expected.

Casseroles Offer Fall Jiffy Cooking

By JEANNE HIGGINS

Although a cool day in November is more conducive to kitchen maneuvers than sandwich and salad days just past, that's no reason for spending the day with your pots and pans. Jiffy cooking is as welcome for preparing foods to weather the fall chill as it was for summer coolers.

The recipe answering to this description is a baked macaroni and salmon casserole using both salmon and macaroni from the can. The macaroni is available with the cheese sauce included.

BAKED MACARONI AND SALMON

- 1 1-pound can salmon, drained
- 2 cans macaroni with cheese sauce
- 2 medium tomatoes, thinly sliced
- 1/2 cup sliced peeled cucumber
- 1/4 cup soft fine bread crumbs
- 2 tablespoons melted butter or margarine
- 1/4 cup grated process American cheese

1. Heat oven to 375 degrees F.

Citizens Equip School

By JEAN ROONEY

Movies, modeling clay, specially-designed desks are part of $5,000 worth of new equipment that parents, Kiwanians and Pilot Club members have financed for the Little Red School House for Special Children.

A five-room dwelling at 119 East Point St. was secured this fall for the small, two-year-old school, with the Airport Kiwanis Club paying the rent.

The pioneering institution for handicapped children, non state-supported and non-profit, is becoming a civic and community undertaking. Mrs. E. C. Bishop, director, enthusiastically reports.

RECORD ENROLLMENT

Enrollment is at a record 28 children, composed for the most part of brain-damaged, mongoloids and a few cerebral palsied boys and girls and three youngsters who have reached their mental limit in the public schools, the director reports.

Mrs. Bishop remembers the Little Red School House's simple beginning in October, 1951, with borrowed desks in a basement room of the East Point Presbyterian Church.

Five mothers, who found no place for their youngsters in the public schools, couldn't afford private schools or couldn't transport them to schools in other parts of the city, brought their boys and girls to the first class.

ORGANIZER, TEACHER

Mrs. Bishop was organizer and teacher.

Work in the Cerebral Palsy School, observation at Aldmore Children's Hospital and the School for Speech Correction and actual practice on her child, a cerebral palsied youngster, form her background.

Much of the teaching is done with movies.

"A darkened room helps the children concentrate and an enlarged image is easier for them to comprehend," Mrs. Bishop has found.

An opaque film projector purchased by the Atlanta Pilot Club, new "angels" for the school, makes the films possible.

Educational toys, "things the students can feel," are used a great deal.

'MOTHER-HELPERS'

For faculty, the school has mother-helpers as well as Mrs. Bishop.

Students' mothers take turns helping one week each month.

"They benefit by greater understanding and sharing their problems with other mothers," the director thinks.

5th District To Sponsor Girls Club

Atlanta's two-year-old Girls Club will get the backing of the Fifth District Federation of Women's Clubs this year, officials announced yesterday.

The 93 women's clubs composing the federation will be asked to give "financial aid, equipment and volunteer service" to the club which furnishes after-school recreation for girls in the Southwest section of the city, Mrs. R. A. Manning, federation president, reported.

The girls meeting place, located in Old Formwalt School, will be a main youth conservation project of the federation, Mrs. Manning said.

Started two years ago by the Junior Atlanta Woman's Club, the Girls Club is seeking community sponsorship. A full-time director, Miss Louise Massey, was secured for the organization this fall.

Nutrition Know-How Gives Power

By IDA JEAN KAIN

Nutrition know-how gives you power over the pounds. Many of you inquire if it is all right to have soup and a favorite dessert for lunch, or just dessert and coffee, provided the calories do not exceed your reducing requirements. That's the surest way to gain!

While dieting, particularly, it is helpful to examine the speed at which the calories are turned into energy. On the surface that may sound desirable, energy being what you want more of. But fast burning foods leave you hungry again in no time at all, so that you crave more food.

QUICK ENERGY FOODS

So here's the story: sugars, including desserts, candy and sweet drinks, burn quickly in the system. They are the quick energy foods. A meal that contains only quickly absorbable sugars is hardly conducive to weight control—regardless of the calories furnished—for this leads to more of the same.

Sugar rapidly forces the blood sugar level high. This high blood sugar level causes the production of insulin but, since the sugar is used up quickly, you're left with the extra insulin. Then down goes blood sugar, and this is followed by a craving for food. Since you prefer something sweet, you probably choose that type of food, and this can go on and on and come out in extra pounds.

BURNS MORE SLOWLY

Starch burns more slowly in the body. Therefore a sandwich at lunch is preferable to the sweet dessert. Since protein burns even more slowly, have a thick filling of protein in a sandwich made of two thin slices of bread.

There you have something that will stick to the ribs. If you carry your lunch, one sandwich, some celery, radishes and carrot sticks, wax wrapped, plus a piece of fruit and a beverage, will be satisfying and slimming.

Fats are slow burning, too, and give a long lasting feeling of satiety but, when they are utilized, they give concentrated calories—2½ times the calorie count of either protein or carbohydrates. A moderate amount of fat adds comfort, but on a low calorie diet, fats cannot be liberally used.

SHOCK YOUR FRIENDS TODAY

Naturally a living room is no place to stack dishes. But this specially posed photograph here is about the weekly average for a family of four. Dishwashing is a big job!

Let this can help get your dishes out of the way!

Packed in a can as it should be—with a dripless spout

Won't break like a bottle. Won't get soggy or take up room like a box. And the dripless spout keeps the liquid from dripping down the side of the can.

For fast, efficient dishwashing—with or without wiping—no washing powder can touch this new Lux Liquid Detergent. One canful will wash more dishes than several boxes of the most popular laundry powder. And thrifty Lux Liquid is almost as mild on your hands as Lux Toilet Soap.

Women tell us that washing dishes with new Lux Liquid Detergent makes even sticky pots and pans seem less of a chore.

This can in your kitchen is the next best thing to a dishwashing machine.

And no wonder! Lux Liquid is designed especially for dishwashing—not for doing Monday's wash. It gets the job done quickly because it soaks the dishes clean. Gets between the clinging grease and the dish. Dissolves the grease.

Just a few drops wash the dishes. One dishwashing will show you how little you have to use.

Now on top of being fast, thorough and thrifty, this new Lux Liquid Detergent is mild. It's almost as mild as Lux Toilet Soap—imagine that! Lux Liquid smells nice, too, and never makes you sneeze.

You get a Lever Brothers guarantee, of course. You can have your money back if you aren't pleased with the quick, shining results. But we honestly think you'll love it!

LEVER BROTHERS

Remember—it's Lux Liquid for dishes. Lux Flakes for nylons. You can double the life of your nylons with Lux Flakes care instead of harsh washday treatment in washday suds. If you want to, you can prove to yourself how gentle Lux Flakes care saves stockings. Get two new pairs. Wash one pair with any washday product. Wash the other pair the Lux way—in pure, gentle Lux Flakes. Do this for several weeks—and you'll see the difference Lux Flakes care makes.

UDC Hears Slave Memories

DONALSONVILLE, Nov. 3.—A recent meeting of the United Daughters of the Confederacy held at the home of Mrs. Julian Webb, featured reminiscences of three elderly Negro women.

Two were daughters of ex-slaves and one an ex-slave herself. Ollie Lee, 107 years old, who lives near Jakin, related that she was the servant of the J. T. Harvey family after the War Between the States. Ollie and her descendants still visit the Harveys frequently.

The other two speakers, Estelle Hill, 80, of Jakin, and Lucy Collier, 89, told of their happy days on the old plantations of this section and of how their families had been owned by Dr. Shumake and the Johnathan Donaldsonville family. They gave the members of the UDC interesting glimpses into antebellum life.

Miss Pot Harvey, president, presided.

Picked Up At Wreck; Rob Victim?

Police last night expressed belief a man picked up at a wreck scene might have been two days in a semiconscious condition as the victim of a slugging and robbery, and apparently has lost his memory.

The man, listed by Patrolmen J. L. Langley and J. R. Hardman as Steven Calloway Vaughn, was identified through registration of the car he was driving Monday night which struck a parked automobile at 964 Greenwood Ave., N.E.

Taken to Grady Hospital after the crash, doctors discovered he suffered a fractured skull, a severe laceration on the bridge of his nose and five deep scalp lacerations which had become infected. Both eyes were black.

These wounds led police to theorize Vaughn was the victim of a slugging and robbery, probably over the weekend, with the conjecture further strengthened by the fact Vaughn carried no identification or personal papers.

Vaughn was reported in fair condition, and attendants described him as "confused and dazed." Vaughn said he was from "Little Five Points," but could not pinpoint the location.

His last address was on Sixth Street, N.W., police said, where a check disclosed residents did not know Vaughn's present address. Relatives are being sought.

AEC Lets Pact

OAK RIDGE, Tenn., Nov. 3 (AP)—The Atomic Energy Commission today announced award of a construction contract to Rust Engineering Co. of Pittsburgh "to modify certain existing buildings in the electro-magnetic uranium separation center area."

NOTE INDICATES SUICIDE PACT

Forbidden To Marry, Couple, 17, Found Slain

PORT JERVIS, N.Y., Nov. 3 (AP)—A 17-year-old high school girl, a forbidden wedding band on her finger, and a boy she wanted desperately to marry were found shot to death today in an apparent murder-suicide pact.

Beside the bodies, still in a final embrace, was a pencilled suicide note, signed by both, that asked their parents:

"How do you feel now?" Police said the note indicated the girl was an expectant mother and that parents of the couple had objected to the marriage.

The girl, Joyce Fulmer, was the daughter of Mrs. Irene Fulmer of Port Jervis, State Police Sgt. William Hamblin said her father, Glenn is separated from her mother.

The boy was Charles W. Jones, also 17, factory worker son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Jones of Montague Township, N. J.

The bodies were found in Jones' 1950 automobile parked on a little used road near the Port Jervis Country Club.

Coroner Kenneth March called it murder and suicide. Police found two .22-caliber rifles in the car and said the boy must have shot the girl with one, then turned he other on himself.

On a car window they hung the tragic note.

It asked that the wedding set—she was wearing an engagement ring and marriage band—be left on her hand, and that Charles' class ring be left on his, said

VA Urged To Give Letters Human Touch

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3 (AP)—Veterans' Administrator Harvey V. Higley told VA employees today to write "with the human touch" in preparing letters to veterans and their dependents.

In a memo to "fellow workers in VA," Higley reminded them that "too often . . . we use cold, stiff, formal language and give the impression we are dealing with a 'case' and not an individual who sought our help."

U.N. To Study Charges Against U.S. Employees

By RICHARD WITKIN

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., Nov. 3 (AP)—The United Nations disclosed today that the United States has furnished derogatory information about a number of American U.N. employees and that their dismissal will be considered.

The information did not, however, involve any question of loyalty.

The disclosure came in a voluminous personnel report by Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld, who asked for sweeping new powers that would enable him to dismiss undesirable of any nationality from his staff.

NONE INVOLVE LOYALTY
Hammarskjöld said the U.S. security check of American U.N. employees had failed so far to turn up a single case of doubtful loyalty. It was understood this covered 1,400 of the total of 1,800 Americans involved in the federal check.

Hammarskjöld did say, however, that information not involving loyalty had been furnished in some cases and that he might have to investigate further. He said this data included, for example, "convictions for crimes not involving subversive activities and allegations of other acts reflecting on the integrity or suitability of the employee."

The Swedish U.N. chief also disclosed that other U.N. members besides the U.S. had supplied derogatory information in "a few cases" and that he might have to look into them, apparently to decide if dismissals were warranted.

BOUND BY DECISION
Hammarskjöld also said he felt bound by the decision of the U.N.

GRAND JURY PRESENTMENTS

September-October Term, 1953
Honorable Ralph Pharr, Judge, Fulton Superior Court

The Fulton County Grand Jury for the term September-October, 1953, having completed its work, respectfully submits the following presentments:

THE SOLICITOR GENERAL

At the outset we would express our thanks to Solicitor Paul Webb and his able staff for the courteous and helpful assistance given us during our term. By their aid in an advisory capacity and in presenting their cases promptly and clearly, they have facilitated our work. The Solicitor was at all times diligent in the performance of his duties, and we were impressed with the absence of animus or prejudice on his part.

THE JUDICIARY

The Grand Jury was pleased to find that the court dockets of the Superior Court, both the criminal and the civil, were in splendid condition. The administration of justice is not a hurried affair, but one of serious deliberations, and we commend the Judges and the Solicitor for their cooperation in keeping the dockets in this shape.

However, we join numerous Grand Jurors which have preceded us in recommending that the sentencing powers be placed in the hands of the Judges instead of juries, since under the laws of our State juries are not permitted access to defendants' previous records, but which are available to the Courts.

SMALL LOAN PRACTICES

This Grand Jury heard extensive evidence concerning the methods of making loans and charge on loans by individuals and companies engaged in the small loan business. We found charges made were exorbitant and placed an unreasonable burden upon necessitous borrowers, and in our belief practices disclosed in cases investigated by us cannot be supported as fair and equitable business principles.

If not indeed illegal they impose intolerable burdens upon those with whom they do business. We are informed there are many loopholes in the present law governing such transactions, and we earnestly call upon our Legislative Representatives to enact such legislation as will plainly indicate charges of any and every kind that can be made on small loans, including the financing of automobiles.

PROFESSIONAL BONDSMEN

We were informed by Chief Jenkins, of the Atlanta Police Department, that previous unsatisfactory conditions relating to professional bondsmen have been corrected. The Chief now has authority to issue permits to such bondsmen, which are subject to immediate revocation if violated. The records showed there were no complaints pending, and that no bonds were in default beyond the thirty-day period allowed. It appears the Police Department has done an excellent job in handling this question, and are being given proper cooperation by the bondsmen.

JAILS AND PRISONS

We inspected the Fulton County Tower and the Fulton County Public Works camps, and found them to be clean and orderly, and we were favorably impressed with the efficient job being done by Mr. Carl Mills, County Ward of the Tower is an obsolete and outmoded prison, and we recommend that the Commissioners give serious consideration to replacing it with a new and modern structure. We suggest a location adjacent to Bellwood Camp, and possibly combining the two operations, which should result in considerable saving of time and effort, as prisoners are now brought in from Bellwood to perform all menial services at the Tower. We realize that suggested procedure would be expensive initially, nevertheless we feel it should be done, and if so would result in material improvement.

CIVIL DEFENSE

The probability of air raids on this community by a hostile force is not here discussed, but the possibility of such is obvious.

COUNTY SCHOOLS

The County schools are operated under the direction of the Board of Education, members of which are appointed by the Grand Jury. Administration is under a Superintendent, who in turn is elected by the people. With no criticism whatever of the present administration we feel the Board should be elected by and responsible to the people, and the Superintendent appointed by the Board, a procedure which has had the formal approval of the Board itself. Anticipated receipts for operation of the school system the present school year are slightly in excess of $4,000,000, which is somewhat less than last year. Purchases, other than building contracts, are by sealed bids in transactions involving more than $100.00. This we approve. Audits of all operating departments are made regularly, and such accounts as we inspect should awaken to the gravity of this situation and become interested to a much greater degree than is now apparent.

TAX COLLECTIONS

Investigation was made by us of difficulties which have arisen in the office of the Tax Commissioner resulting from the consolidation under the Plan of Improvement. Delay has been experienced in preparing a Digest for the City of Atlanta, and also in the issuance of tax bills. This delay has created quite a problem to the City in its financial operations, which for years have been on a fiscally sound basis. We find that both city and county officials are now working together harmoniously in an effort to solve this problem. We believe such cooperation, if continued, will prevent a recurrence of difficulties such as have been experienced this year. Changes are contemplated which should expedite the issuance of tax bills and simplify matters for taxpayers. We believe the consolidation of the tax offices to be a constructive step, and we are told that in many counties much larger than our similar operations are entirely successful. We commend the attitude of both city and county authorities in their efforts toward successful operation.

UPON INVESTIGATION

Upon investigation we find that for the years 1950 and 1951 there are many thousands of dollars in uncollected taxes, in addition to large sums against taxpayers since insolvent. We recommend the Tax Commissioner assign adequate staff to push these collections more vigorously than before, as it is our opinion that if sufficient effort is made, much of these delinquencies can be recovered.

COUNTY BUDGETARY CONTROL

We find that at the last General Assembly a new law was passed which enables Fulton County to establish a Budget Commission to propose and manage a financial budget for the County. Operation becomes effective January 1 next, and rigid rules are set forth for the preparation of such budget. The budget is to be submitted to the Commissioners at their first regular meeting in December. It shall be advertised and shall be officially adopted in January following. Any interested citizen is entitled to examine the provisions of such proposed budget, which we believe will result in improved financial planning and control for the County. We are indebted to Mr. A. L. Fuller, County Manager, for his cooperative assistance to us.

LAW ENFORCEMENT

Only by alert and adequate enforcement of the laws can any community maintain its freedom from criminal rule. Police functions in the entire county are now under the direction of the Atlanta Police Department, and we discussed various phases of law enforcement with the Chief of that Department, Herbert Jenkins. He stated that no cases had been reported of drinking, or gambling, or the sale or use of marijuana cigarettes around the city or county schools, and that, to his knowledge, there has not been a teen-age drug addict found here. We interviewed many residents of the various sections in the various unincorporated sections of the county, and they were of the opinion that these areas are now being better policed than in former years. It is our conclusion that the present method of policing areas beyond the city limits of Atlanta is adequate, both in personnel and equipment, and that such areas are being given good protection at all hours. We were impressed with the effective and orderly manner in which the City Police Department is conducted, and the desire of the Chief to receive all constructive suggestions offered. Continual improvement in the personnel of officers is noted, and we feel the entire Department is to be commended. We find no evidence of organized crime in our community, which we think could not exist under an alert and competent police force.

By unanimous vote the Grand Jury passed a resolution to include in these presentments an expression of its thanks and appreciation for the outstanding leadership of its Foreman, Aubrey Milam. His long experience in public affairs, as well as his service on many previous Grand Juries, was reflected in his ability and ready grasp of the problems confronting the Jury. He impressed the entire Grand Jury with his sincerity of purpose and zeal for complete fairness in our deliberations. His guidance was invaluable to the Jury in the discharge of our duties.

We close this report with the recommendation that these presentments be published in The Atlanta Journal, The Atlanta Constitution and the Fulton County Daily Report.

This the 30th day of October, 1953.

Respectfully submitted,
AUBREY MILAM, Foreman.

Knighted by the late King George VI of England in 1946 in recognition of the part he played in developing Hebrew University, the 57-year-old official carried letters of introduction from the Israeli Embassy and the U.S. Department of State. His host, Dr. Coulter, spent 6 months during the winter of 1952-53 as a visiting lecturer on American history at Hebrew University. The university, which enrolls more than 2,000 local and foreign students, including Arabs, was founded in the late 1920s.

Death Explained To Young Child

By THE REV. ROBERT B. GIFFEN

DEAR MR. GIFFEN: How can you explain death to a child? My little girl who will be five this year, is a firm believer in God. But she was very disturbed over the kidnapping and murder of little Bobby Greenlease. . . . She wonders why God would let a little boy be taken away from his mother and be hurt and killed. When she asks a blessing before she eats she talks to God about it as if he were a friend sitting beside her.—P.

DEAR MRS. P.: You ask two questions: What is death? and why does God permit evil in the world?

Arthur Holden explained to a dying 10-year-old the first in terms like these: God loves you; He made you; He once became a man and died for you; and now he wants you to come to be with Him always.

In the distress and anger and sickness we feel for Bobby Greenlease, and for his parents, it is shocking to think that a good God would permit such a thing to happen.

Yet we know that this kind of evil is not God's idea. Chance played a large part, and a number of people let Bobby down. It is good to know that at the last there were available to receive him, the everlasting arms.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 spade	2 diamonds	3 diamonds	Pass
3 hearts	Pass	3 spades	Pass
4 clubs	Pass	4 hearts	Pass
6 spades	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Queen of diamonds.

An abundance of possessions lulled South into a false sense of security in today's hand, inducing him to overlook a safety play of an elementary type.

West made a rather futile overcall of two diamonds. Such a bid is more apt to be helpful to the opposition than to hinder them. It gave North an opportunity to make an immediate cue bid, though it did require slight poetic license. Had West passed, North would have been compelled to bid in a roundabout manner. His hand is worth 17 points in support and is therefore a shade too strong for a double raise, which covers hands valued at 13 to 16 points. When South showed his second suit, North, having already taken drastic action, could do no more than return to partner's first suit, but after South showed the ace of clubs, North was justified in showing the heart fit.

West opened the queen of diamonds, which declarer won in dummy. With his cup running over, he promptly led a low spade from dummy and put up the queen from his own hand. When West showed out, everything went black. South considered that he had been the victim of an outrageous fate but failed to elicit any sympathetic reaction from partner. "Who would expect trumps to break 4-0?" he complained. Actually, this distribution is not nearly as remote as some players seem to think. It will occur about one time in 10, and come to think of it, a horse coming in at nine to one does not necessarily rate a bold headline.

Declarer could have protected himself against this mishap by a simple precaution, which had everything to gain and nothing to lose. The winning play is the jack of spades first. If spades break 2-2 or 3-1, the hand cannot be lost. If West happens to have all four spades, the hand cannot be won, for West must win two trump tricks on any line of play. But if East has all four spades, declarer can pick up the entire suit if he learns of the distribution in time. Playing the jack produces this result. East wins with the ace, and declarer discovers the exact holding. He subsequently enters dummy to lead a spade, and East is forced to split. Dummy is then re-entered and East is finessed out of his remaining honor.

The Redman's Burden

Following the Revolution, the United States Government faced a serious problem in Georgia. The people demanded that all Indians be removed from the state. The federal government, quietly decided to pursue a program of passive resistance to the demand. The acts that followed were based on the hypocritical art of "double-dealing." The national government assured Georgia the redskins would be relocated in the Middle-west. Faith in that promise led the state to donate her western lands to the Union. From these lands the states of Alabama and Mississippi were created. In treaty negotiations with the Indians, the government led them to believe they were to become an integral part of the new republic and urged that they adopt the ways of the white man. The Cherokees, believing the suggestion was honest and sincere, proceeded to build an amazing nation of their own, based on the principles of good will and good citizenship. They drew up a constitution which followed the structure of the United States document; passed laws to promote morality; constructed a "national" capitol and courthouse. The once wild tribes settled down to the pursuit of agriculture, horticulture and stock raising. Permanent homes supplanted the teepees of the past. They started a newspaper printed in both Cherokee and English. Christian churches and missionary schools were welcomed and the excessive use of intoxicating liquors discouraged. The whole unsavory procedure came to a tragic climax when Georgia threatened to take up arms against the Indians and the national government unless the promise of removal was fulfilled. The Cherokee capitol was located at New Echota, Ga., and in 1830 the State Legislature passed an act forbidding the Indians to operate their government within the boundaries of Georgia. This was the beginning of the end of the Cherokee nation, and a bitter lesson for all concerned in the methods of dishonest diplomacy.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VANDELLEN

Influenza Epidemic Seen This Winter

WE NOW KNOW that influenza epidemics follow a pattern and, by studying the records, many authorities are able to predict when the disease will strike again. There is some evidence that we will have a high incidence in the 1953-54 season but no one knows whether it will be mild or severe.

The influenza vaccine is the best method on hand for protection against an epidemic. The vaccine must contain the protective antibodies of several viruses, because the disease is caused by more than one strain of this micro-organism. Statistics along this line go back to 1930, when we first learned that a single virus is not the culprit.

Most epidemics of the last 30 years have been mild and they probably escaped the attention of most people. To many, the number of cases meant little more than "a lot of flu around this spring."

The severity of an epidemic depends upon the virulence of the organism and the susceptibility of the population. Because minor epidemics occur at frequent intervals, most people develop a certain degree of immunity to the invading germs. An epidemic caused by one of the milder strains usually is more prevalent in infants and children because they lack the immunity acquired by older persons.

We wonder how much physicians of the 14th, 15th, and 16th centuries knew about immunity to influenza. According to Dr. Thomas Francis Jr., when an epidemic occurred, it was referred to as "The New Acquaintance." Did they mean it was a new disease or that the causative organism was a newcomer and was finding everyone susceptible?

Times have not changed. In an epidemic, many are ill but few die. Historians tell us that old timers also had pet names to describe their epidemics in much the same way as we speak about flu, virus X, the virus thing, or the pip. To those of another era flu was the jolly rant, the new delight, the gallant's disease, or the fashionable illness.

MIRROR OF YOUR MIND

By JOSEPH WHITNEY

Are modern marriages holding together?

Answer: There has been no startling decline in the divorce rate, but Prof. John Sirjamaki, Yale sociologist, believes that American marriages are happier and better integrated than ever before. Married people today are happier as a group and hold to higher standards than prevailed in any previous period. Prof. Sirjamaki pointed out that divorce is now a world-wide phenomenon and its causes should not be searched for exclusively within our national culture.

Can kleptomania be cured?

Answer: Yes. Kleptomania is a neurotic compulsion to steal, even when there is no possible need for the objects that are stolen. Unconscious factors that developed in childhood are responsible, usually feelings of neglect, of not being loved, of being completely rejected. Victims of kleptomania who tend to recognize their problem and seek help on their own volition can often bring about a satisfactory adjustment through the application of psychiatric treatment.

TRAIN FOR EMERGENCY

All Hands Study Maps At Marietta Air Center

By ANNE GOWEN

Cooks, clerks, gardeners and mechanics are learning map-plotting to qualify as emergency replacements at the 35th Air Division's combat operations center at Marietta.

The new training program designed to counteract anticipated cuts in Air Force personnel at the 35th's headquarters, they said. The cuts are expected to result from the Air Force policy of releasing Air National Guard units as soon as practicable, the officials said.

TRAIN AS FILL-INS

The new program will train almost every airman in the 35th to fill in at the operations center where the positions of enemy planes would be tracked in event of attack.

If the specialists who regularly man battle stations at the center are killed or injured, replacements could be found in every office at 35th's headquarters, Lt. John W. Kennely, division education specialist said.

Kennely said the map-plotting course will not interfere with the regular duties of the airmen enrolled. They will train only two hours a week for 15 weeks, he said.

ONE-ROOM BRAIN

The combat operations center is the one-room "brain" of the Air Force in the Southeast. Every aircraft in the 35th's seven-state area of responsibility is charted on a giant map in the room.

This center is in operation 24 hours a day, every day, and is in constant communication with all armed forces installations and

DeKalb Chest Workers Aim to Complete Quota

The DeKalb County division of the Greater Atlanta Community Chest needs to raise 27 per cent of a $75,800 quota this week to insure success of the drive there, according to Chest leaders.

A one-day residential solicitation of Chest funds Nov. 10 is expected to bring in $30,700 or about 40 per cent of the total, DeKalb Chairman Guy Rutland Jr. said.

Other sections of the DeKalb drive had reported 33 per cent of the goal reached Monday, the end of the fourth week of solicitation for most of them.

Rutland and Co-Chairmen James A. Mackay and M. E. Cox predicted nearly 800 workers would participate in the house-to-house canvass next Tuesday.

The residential solicitors will work between 7 and 9 p.m. that day. Some workers in less populated areas of the county will canvass during daylight hours Nov. 10 and earlier, Rutland added.

Chairmen of various sections of the DeKalb division are as follows:

S. A. Council, special gifts; Daniel W. Woodman, commerce, industry and finance; Harry Schmid, local government; Dr. Chester Morse, professions; Mrs. Jack Hunter, Decatur residential; and Hubert Morgan, county-towns

New Home Building Up In DeKalb

Residential building in DeKalb County during October was up over September home construction, but was less than building in October, 1952, Leon O'Neal, county building inspector, said yesterday.

Commercial construction, however, was higher during last month than both comparative periods, the official added.

The county during October issued permits for the construction of 227 housing units valued at $1,721,000, O'Neal reported. In September, 224 permits for $1,631,000 in construction were issued, he said.

Records showed DeKalb during October, 1952, authorized the building of 272 residential units valued at $1,879,400.

Permits for 14 commercial building projects valued at $158,000 were issued during October, 1953. These figures showed a monetary increase over the 16 projects authorized during September, valued at $132,000.

The county issued permits for eight commercial projects valued at $143,500 during October, 1952.

N. Y. Financiers Consider Go Ahead on Stone Mt.

New York financiers may work toward the financing of the proposed $3,500,000 Stone Mountain Memorial Park without assurance of early appropriation of state funds, DeKalb Commissioner Scott Candler said yesterday.

There still can be no prediction made as to when such a move will be made, however, Candler added. He is chairman of the State Parks Authority that has control of the Stone Mountain project.

Originally, Candler said, New York bankers agreed to help finance the project through a revenue certificate issue if the state would show its good faith in the park by purchasing the mountain and necessary surrounding acreage.

The Legislature authorized an expenditure of $800,000 for the mountain purchase, but Gov. Talmadge said he would not appropriate the money until the state was in better financial condition.

With the state funds in the balance, Candler said, the bankers refused to move ahead on the financing plan.

During a recent conference in Washington, D.C., however, the bankers told Candler that financial conditions were improving and that they would look into the possibilities of financing the land purchase without state funds.

SET WORSHIP

The Druid Hills Tri-Hi-Y Club will hold the devotional at the district Hi-Y meeting in Grayson Saturday.

WITHHOLDS MONEY

"That would mean we would cut the project cost down to $2,500,000 and count on the state funds for later use in developing the park," Candler said.

The parks authority chairman emphasized, however, that the bankers would give no indication of when definite action would be taken.

Chamblee Seeks Club At Lawson

A plan to request the Federal government to transfer part of Lawson General Hospital facilities to the city of Chamblee will be placed before the Chamblee City Council for approval Friday, Mayor Woody B. Malone said.

"I am requesting the council to ask the government for the former officers' club and the swimming pool on the Lawson General Hospital property," Malone said.

Malone said some sort of recreational and educational center was badly needed in the city and the Lawson facilities would be the answer to the problem.

TEEN-AGE CENTER
The mayor said he has been trying to have the council issue revenue bonds to provide a teen-age center for Chamblee youngsters.

Malone said he is quite sure the government will transfer the requested property to the city as surplus government property.

The city plans to use the club for roller skating, dances, and a health and educational center.

LARGE FLOOR SPACE
Malone said the club has a completely equipped kitchen, a large dining space and facilities for a bowling alley.

The Atlanta Naval Air Station has been using the swimming pool during the summer months but Malone felt a suitable arrangement could be worked out with the naval authorities.

"We would like to have the pool but if we can't get it, we'll make out very well with the clubhouse," the Chamblee mayor said.

Fire Halls Cut Buckhead Insurance Costs $250,000

Northside residents are reaping the double benefits of reduced fire insurance rates and increased fire protection from fire house construction in the area, Alderman Cobb Torrance said yesterday.

New firehouses have pushed the insurance rate down in Buckhead and have saved an estimated $250,000 for residents in lower premiums, Torrance said. He is chairman of the City Council fire insurance rates committee.

The rates were dropped Oct. 1 after the firehouse at Northside drive and Conway drive, NW, was opened.

The rate was lowered enough to compensate for the scheduled opening on Dec. 15 of the Bolton fire station," Torrance said.

DUE TO GO LOWER
The present rate in Buckhead is 28 cents on the standard dwelling, but with water facilities being extended in the area to keep up with the rapid home expansion, the rate is expected to go even lower.

Torrance said water supply and pressure and nearness to the fire station are figured into the lowering of the rates.

Atlanta laid 96 miles of water mains in the past 15 months but still has about 225 miles to lay to insure proper supply to all sections of the city, Torrance said.

MOVES AT FAST PACE
"Only 900 miles of water pipe were put down in the last 50 years so the city is moving at a much faster rate than formerly," he said.

"We have been promised additional funds for fire stations and with standard water facilities we are aiming for a rate of 22 cents on all dwellings within the city limits," Torrance said.

At present only dwellings within the old city limits have the 22-cent rate.

Abolish Asst. Chief's Job, East Point Council Asked

Police Position Was Sought
By Ailing Capt. Andrews

The job that Police Capt. Tom Andrews wanted most of all—Assistant Chief—may have been abolished, even as he cracked under the strain of ill health and tension Monday night.

East Point City Council, meeting while Andrews turned against his friends and family a few blocks away, received a strong recommendation from Chief of Police William Tyler to abolish the assistant's job and install a three-captain system.

The proposal, introduced to council by Police Committee Chairman J. Henry Blair, asked for the promotion of another Captain to be chosen from the lieutenants.

Under Chief Tyler's proposal, Captain Buster Blount, Capt. Andrews and the new captain would have had charge of the three eight-hour police shifts.

The captains would have been equal in authority, each having full jurisdiction over his "watch." Council took Councilman Blair's committee report under immediate advisement, but took no further action on the job Monday night.

In other Council action, an ordinance limiting truck traffic to four main thoroughfares in the city was read for the second time and passed unanimously.

However, Councilman Henry Stanfield motioned that the ordinance be studied further in case possible clarifying phrases should be inserted to explain under what conditions delivery trucks, construction and building material vehicles can use the restricted residential streets.

Council also held first reading of an ordinance drawn up by City Attorney Ezra Phillips exempting corner lots from sewage assessments for 150 lineal feet.

South Fulton Hospital Fund Session Topic

The South Fulton Cities Hospital Authority, newly revamped organization striving for a hospital in the South Fulton area, will decide tonight how to raise $500,000.

Adopting a policy that "money talks," the board of trustees of the group will lay immediate plans for raising the funds that will be the public part in such a hospital.

The Rev. John Summer, executive secretary of the group, said the public was invited to the meeting which will be held at the East Point Third Ward Community House at Brookdale Park, beginning at 7:30 p.m.

This will be the first meeting of the authority since Fayette and Clayton County trustees pulled out of the old tri-city authority two weeks ago.

The split of the old authority was made so that the counties could each seek a hospital instead of having one to serve a three-county area.

Meanwhile, the Reverend Summer has lodged another plea with the Fulton-DeKalb Hospital Authority to authorize a South Fulton Hospital to treat indigent patients, thus receiving financial aid from that group.

East Point Host BPW State Meet

The Tri-City Business and Professional Women's Club will act as host to some 100 delegates from state clubs Sunday at the East Point Summer Park Recreation Building.

Representatives from 13 clubs in the Third District will attend the one-day conference and will hear Dr. Arthur H. Kantner, agricultural economist with the Atlanta Federal Reserve Bank, deliver the luncheon address on "The Federal Reserve System."

Gertrude Wright of the Jackson club will open the meeting, followed by devotional services by the Rev. George Hoffman Smith, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church in East Point.

Miss Lila Denman, president of the Tri-City Club will welcome guests. The program will cover club committee work, led by Mrs. Una Roberts of Albany, first vice president of the state federation; membership plans by Mrs. Rosebud McCormack of Cordele, second vice president, and state workshop plans discussed by Miss Anise Troth of Atlanta, president of the state federation of business and professional women.

Mrs. Luvie Mason will have charge of the luncheon and Mrs. Helen Spencer of Jackson, Third District chairman, will preside over business sessions.

College Park Presbyterian Church Elects

The College Park Presbyterian Church has elected officers for 1954, including three elders: W. P. Bernal, Conway T. Mizelle and W. S. Porter.

Other officers include nine new deacons: J. T. Bruer, J. E. Godwin Jr., R. L. Granger, J. G. Grubbs, J. L. Hughey, R. B. Miller, R. M. Steele, H. B. Visscher and Lewis Walters.

Pre-School Group Plans Manners Talk

Health Unit Opened in College Park

The co-operative efforts of North Clayton County residents reached a peak of satisfaction Monday with the opening of a new community health center in College Park.

Mrs. E. B. Hart and her non-profit committee of citizens who pitched in with hammer, paint brush and plain hard work proudly dedicated the center at 203 Bostwick Dr. with an open house attended by College Park city officials and state health officials.

The new center was an unused community house before Mrs. Hart's committee got hold of it. Now it will be used for the Clayton County public health nurse visits, baby clinics, and home demonstration club meetings.

Mrs. Hart said the community also hopes to get approval for X-ray clinics in the near future. Dr. Ernest A. Dunbar of Forest Park will serve as pediatrician at the clinic.

Civil Defense Classes Begin At Hapeville

The Hapeville Civil Defense office begins this week a series of day and night classes in first aid at the Hapeville Recreation Center, according to Director John T. Lawrence.

Mrs. Marjory Liptak will conduct the classes from 9:30 until 11:30 a.m. each Monday and Tuesday for the next five weeks. A nursery will be provided so that mothers may attend, Lawrence said.

Evening classes will also be held on Monday and Tuesday nights for five weeks, from 7:30 to 9:30. Gaddis Rosser will instruct the class.

Lawrence also announced that Mrs. Wade Stallings will be on duty each day at the CD offices to answer any questions on the classes or other CD activities. Telephone number is CA. 8855.

Schools Install 13 'Gra-Y' Clubs

James B. Dean, chairman of the South Fulton YMCA Branch, has announced the installation of "Gra-Y" Clubs in all 13 Tri-City grammar schools.

Patterned after the "Hi-Y" organization, the elementary school clubs will meet once a week to engage in social, physical, athletic, religious and educational projects, Dean said.

Twelve of the Tri-City schools have two clubs each, and East Point Elementary is sponsoring one group, he added.

Hapeville Club Queries Candidates on Issues

A questionnaire designed to determine the viewpoints of the six candidates in Hapeville's approaching city elections is being sent out this week by the Hapeville Exchange Club.

The 12-question sheet covers 10 issues pertaining to the city government which the Exchange Club believes are of greatest concern to Hapeville voters.

Included in the questionnaire are requests for the candidate's platform, his stand on annexation to Atlanta, and his views on suggestions that city ordinances be codified and published in condensed form for public availability.

TAXES, SALARIES

The three mayoralty and three council candidates are queried on taxes, additional revenue, salary raises or adjustments for city employees, adjustment of the recreation department and recreation board, zoning practices and sidewalk and paving plans.

The questionnaire also asks whether the cost of the sanitary department, including the operation of garbage trucks, should be financed entirely by the city sanitary tax or subsidized by other revenue, which is the current plan.

Sanitary department officials estimate the cost of garbage pickup for each house at $12 a year. The special sanitary tax is set at $6 a year for each house.

The sheet asks opinions on what qualifications the city recorder should possess and whether the city attorney should be expected to appear in recorder's court as prosecutor in difficult or defended cases.

3-MAN COMMITTEE

A three-man committee, Robert McCord, chairman, James D. Russell, and Henry Heery prepared the questionnaire for the club.

The Exchange Club decided to sponsor the questionnaire after the Hapeville Community Council turned down the idea last week in view of protests by members of the clergy and Lions Club.

However, the Council agreed to sponsor a political rally Nov. 20 at the Hapeville Recreation Center and the Exchange Club questionnaire is being sent out with requests that it be returned prior to the rally.

Candidates receiving the question are Frank Lea, Harvey Peppers and Eugene Dixon, candidates for mayor; Perry Jackson, August Hilsman and E. L. Ellis, candidates for city council.

FLAG BURNING—Members of Hapeville Girl Scout Troop 240 learned a new part of flag etiquette this week when they were through the proper method of burning a flag, at College Street School. While other members of the troop stood at attention, the color guard disposed of the worn out flag as prescribed by tradition. Slowing burning the flag is Vicki Smith, while left to right are Louise Easley, Judy Hollis, Martha Colwer and Claire Leach.

Committee For Depot Is Named

The Atlanta General Depot advisory committee, composed of South Fulton civilians and Army personnel, is laying plans for its first meeting to further community relations between the Army's largest supply depot and the surrounding communities.

The civilian complement of the committee is composed of the mayors, chiefs of police, pastors, chamber of commerce members and press representatives from Hapeville, College Park, East Point, Jonesboro, and Forest Park.

TO MEET SOON

Brig. Gen. Frank C. Holbrook, commanding general of AGD, said the first meeting of the group was planned soon, after appointment of committee members this week.

Gen. Holbrook, chairman of the committee, said "a complete understanding of the Army's mission and functions in relation to the civic communities are of paramount importance not only to the installation but the communities as well."

Periodic conferences between leaders of the communities and the Army are advantageous toward obtaining benefits for both the installation and the communities.

CIVILIAN MEMBERS

Members of the committee include: Mayor Mal Anderson, College Park; Mayor Al Roberts, Hapeville; William Tyler, the Rev. Robert O. Weaver, James Preston and C. N. Martin Jr., all of East Point; Mayor W. H. Fleming, R. M. Butler, Dr. E. A. Dunbar Jr., E. W. Van Houten, and the Rev. W. Paul Gibson, Forest Park.

Mayor Frank Lea, John M. Harris, George B. Pearson Jr., Hapeville; Mayor D. H. Dickson, E. J. Swint, The Rev. Frank Price, E. E. Conkle, and W. L. Mathews, Jonesboro.

John Wilson, depot surgeon; Capt. Marlin Curry, chaplain; and John H. MacDonald, public information officer. Liaison member, Brig. Gen. Carl T. Sutherland.

Water, Sewer Extension Study Set

College Park Council has placed on the agenda of its next meeting discussion on issuing $125,000 in water and sewage certificates to spread city improvements to newly annexed areas of College Park.

The certificates would raise necessary funds for sewage improvements and water mains in the Live-oak Gardens community and possibly the Roosevelt Heights subdivision.

A petition for annexation has been presented council by the owner of the Roosevelt Heights area, and the city has already agreed to furnish the homes there with water.

Major Mal Anderson recommended to Council at its meeting this week that the certificates be issued. Council will discuss the proposal Nov. 17 and will call on City Attorney Henry Crawford Jr. to draw a resolution for public referendum.

Alabaman Leads Baptist Revival

Dr. Garrett Graham, pastor of the First Baptist Church, Anniston, Ala., is conducting a two-week revival at the East Point First Baptist Church through Nov. 15.

He is being assisted by Dr. W. A. Duncan, pastor of the church. Morning services are being held at 10 a.m. and evening services at 7:45 p.m. each day except Sunday during the revival. Sunday services will be held at regular church hours.

Frank Bozeman, minister of music at the First Baptist Church, is conducting the musical portion of the services.

Tri-Cities Discover Wide Array Of Talent in Art Week Exhibits

Artists whose creative ability may have gone unnoticed in the seclusion of their homes are being exposed to compliments and acclaim this week in the Tri-cities, scene of three art exhibits.

All three cities have joined in American Art Week celebrations and painters, sculptors, wood carvers and other deft artisans have put their work on display.

Among the art on display there is an oil painting of a horse done by Miss Patsy Waites, youngest contributor at age 10, and an intricately patterned crocheted bedspread made by Mrs. Lula Ann Teal when she was 84.

An exhibit of East Point talent in the many phases of art will be open to the public Thursday through Saturday at the East Point Woman's Club from 3 until 9 p.m. each day.

Mrs. R. B. Fitzgerald, East Point chairman of art week, said the show will feature plastics and ceramics, metal work, wood carving, textile painting, sculpture, modeling, jewelry, weaving, knitting, leather work, flower arrangements, quilting, antiques, china painting, hand-made candles, hooked rugs and textiles.

East Point schools have added their enthusiasm to the project and indicate each will enter work done by the different grades, Mrs. Fitzgerald said.

West End women have been asked to volunteer as canteen workers with the Greater Atlanta Red Cross bloodmobile, at headquarters and at 48 Hospital.

Mrs. Marion Sneed of West End, in charge of the program, explains that women will be asked to work only half a day when called—from 9:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. or from noon until 4:30 p.m.

The women will serve refreshments to blood donors.

Poppy Sales

Thousands of crepe poppies—tributes to America's war dead—will be sold on the streets of West End and Atlanta Wednesday, Nov. 11, by women of four American Legion Auxiliary units in the West End section.

Participating will be West End Auxiliary unit 147, Capitol View unit 161, Boulder Park unit 131, and the newly organized Cascade Heights unit 61.

Proceeds will help in the child welfare and rehabilitation programs, aiding needy veterans and their families. A Christmas party for veterans' children and aid to veteran-patients at 48 Hospital are included under this program.

Each auxiliary volunteer selling the poppies will be identified by a badge, worn on the lapel, and will carry a container bearing the approval seal of the Atlanta Fund Appeals Review Board.

Widening Is Slated

Westview Dr. from Gordon Rd. to St. Jose St. will be widened into a six-lane Expressway leg to handle heavy traffic expected after the establishment of a new giant industrial area near Fulton County Airport, Alderman Milton Farris said this week.

The Council's Public Works Committee and the entire council have approved the project, Farris said. The new leg will connect with the proposed East and West Bypass when they are built, and will cost about $1,000,000, Farris said.

The proposed new industrial area, located between Gordon and Cascade Rds., will have 23 factories on about 800 acres of land adjacent to Fulton Airport. Plans have been temporarily held up pending approval of rail lines into the factory area by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Parcel post didn't start until Jan. 1, 1913, and Starr was on hand to accept the first insured parcel post package ever mailed in the Atlanta post office.

He has been superintendent of the West End station since Aug. 16, 1926. He's leaving because he's 70, the compulsory retiring age for postal employees.

Starting out with the mail service, Starr didn't feel he had a long career ahead. The first time he rode a railway mail car as clerk, the engine jumped the track, killed the engineer and dumped Starr and his mail car within inches of a steel water tender, which could have crushed both.

"Only the good Lord's pleasure kept me in the world that day and many of them since," Starr says.

He left the railway mail service in 1911 to come to the Atlanta post office. In 1920, he became foreman of the registered division. He stayed there until Nov. 1, 1923, when he was made superintendent of the Marietta Street post office division, where he remained until coming to West End in 1928.

Before joining the postal service, as a young man, Mr. Starr worked at a dairy, livery stable, and country store near Mansfield, Ga. He was born near Starsville in Newton county.

He and his wife now live at 1596 Willowbrook Dr., SW. They have two children, H. B. Jr., with the State Board of Health in Macon, and Mrs. H. B. Parrish, Atlanta, a teacher at Adair school.
